J. W. ALEXANDER OF MISSOURI WILL SUCCEED REDFIELD

President Surprises Experts by Selecting Gallatin Congressman as Secretary of Commerce.

APPOINTEE FIRST HEARS NEWS TODAY

White House Insists on His Acceptance—Is Serving Seventh Term—An Expert on Shipping.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Joshua W. Alexander of Gallatin, Mo., representative from the third Missouri district in Congress, did not know until this morning that he was to be Secretary of Commerce to succeed William C. Redfield. Last Saturday when Alexander was visiting his daughter at Excelsior Springs he received a telegram from Secretary Tumulty saying that the President wished to consult him on an important matter. He departed immediately, was delayed en route by missing a train connection and arrived in Washington this morning. On going to the White House he was astonished to learn from Tumulty that the President had decided to name him Secretary of Commerce. "Give me until day after tomorrow to decide," said Alexander.

He went to his office in the House office building and soon the telephone rang. The White House was calling. "The President won't take no for an answer," said Tumulty. "He wants you to accept now so he can send your name to the Senate today." Alexander accepted.

The appointment of Alexander was a surprise not only to him, but to all official Washington. His name had never been mentioned in the speculation as to Redfield's successor. Several days ago the opinion prevailed that the President would name Bernard W. Baruch.

President's Personal Choice.

Secretary Tumulty told friends that the President was actuated in the appointment by his fondness for the Missouri Congressman and appreciation of the work he had done in Congress in connection with the shipping legislation. Alexander was the President's personal selection, according to Tumulty. No intimation of the President's intention has been received at Democratic national headquarters here. Though apparently the President acted solely on his own initiative, it was recalled today that Alexander is a personal friend of William G. McAdoo and that McAdoo wrote him letters for use in his campaign in the third district in 1916.

The Washington home of "Judge" Alexander, as he is known, and Mrs. Alexander is at 1110 Rhode Island avenue. His wife, to whom he was married in 1876, is a daughter of the late Judge Samuel A. Richardson. They have seven children—Mrs. N. R. Jenner, wife of a Washington physician; Mrs. A. G. Ficklin, of Stansbury, Mo.; George F. Alexander, United States Marshal at Portland, Ore.; Walter R. Alexander, an attorney for the Shipping Board, at Washington; Miss Rowena Alexander and Preston C. Alexander, who lives with their parents here, and Lawrence W. Alexander, a student at the University of Missouri.

Alexander's selection will put two Missourians in the Cabinet, Secretary Houston being a St. Louisan.

Alexander has served continuously in Congress since 1904, having resigned in the middle of a six-year term as Judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Missouri to take his seat. He has been in public life since 1876, when he was elected Public Administrator at Gallatin, Mo.

Alexander is 67 years old and was born in Cincinnati, O.

Retirement From Congress Will Necessitate Special Election.

Joshua W. Alexander has been a member of the House from the Third Missouri District for seven terms, having first been elected to the Sixtieth Congress. Before going to Congress he had held many public positions in Missouri, having been Public Administrator of Daviess County, member of the Board of Education of Gallatin, speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives of which he was a member six years, Mayor of Gallatin, member of the Board of Managers of the State Asylum at St. Joseph, and Circuit Judge.

In the last primary he was opposed for renomination by Frank P. Divelbiss of Richmond, who was killed early this year by Robert S. Lyon, Richmond editor, as a result of a quarrel growing out of the campaign.

Alexander is 68 years old and has a family consisting of his wife and eight children.

He was named by President Wilson as House member of the United

STORES HERE TO BE OPEN FROM 9 TO 5 ONLY IN ORDER TO CONSERVE FUEL

Fuel Board Order Does Not Include Drug Stores and Residence District Groceries—Houses to Be Heated to 68 Degrees.

A fuel conservation order, issued this afternoon by the Regional Coal Committee, which has jurisdiction in St. Louis and in parts of Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana, provides that retail stores shall be open between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., only. The committee explained that, in St. Louis, drug stores and residence groceries would be an exception to this rule. Downtown groceries must keep the prescribed hours.

The maximum temperature for home heating is fixed at 68 degrees, gas grate fires in houses otherwise heated are forbidden, and churches are asked to reduce their heating requirements by combining in Sunday community services.

The text of the statement issued by the committee follows:

The Regional Coal Committee announces that every citizen, every manufacturer, every retailer, every property owner must be governed as follows:

1. Every householder will see that not more than 68 degrees temperature is maintained. Every unused rom should be cut off from heat and unnecessary lights eliminated.

2. All apartments and flats must not be heated above 68 degrees and all unused rooms and unnecessary lights must be cut off.

3. All agents of apartment houses, janitors and owners must see that these instructions are obeyed.

4. Gas for cooking and heating must be economized, and fires in gas grates eliminated where other heat is obtainable.

5. Owners, managers and superintendents of office buildings, stores, shops and factories must take part in the conservation of fuel.

6. All retail store business hours shall be restricted to 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Window light shall not burn during the day until sunset with the exception of lights in show windows 12 feet back from the sidewalk where it is essential that they burn in order to light the entrance to buildings. All show window lights shall be out at 6 p. m. daily.

7. Institutions, such as hospitals and asylums, must reduce to the minimum light and power utilization.

8. It is earnestly requested that all churches at once arrange, beginning Sunday, for joint meetings in community churches, as during the war period.

Present Hours 9 to 5:30.

The present hours of downtown stores which are members of the Associated Retailers are from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., except Saturday, when the closing is at 6.

Nothing in the order affects theaters, moving picture shows or dance halls. The committee has already ruled that amusement establishments may use the coal they have on hand, but may not buy more. Several downtown theaters get their heat from office buildings or service companies, and no order definitely affecting them has been made.

The committee has previously ordered that all electric signs shall be shut off at 9 p. m.

Chairman Greenlaw of the committee stated that there is no immediate cause for alarm here, if consumers will conserve as much as possible.

A number of churches have agreed to dispense with mid-week meetings. Some industrial plants continue to lay off employes and to curtail operations.

May Cut Train Service.

Tentative plans for a reduction in railroad service, to be made in case the fuel emergency becomes so severe as to require such reduction have been made by officials connected with the Railroad Administration in the St. Louis region. In the event of such action, the number of passenger trains between St. Louis and Chicago, and between St. Louis and Kansas City, would be reduced, and through trains on all lines would be required to make local stops, local trains being eliminated. There are now nine trains daily from St. Louis to Chicago, on four lines, and nine trains on four lines to Kansas City.

The effect of requiring through trains to handle local business would be to disrupt schedules and to make the time for departure of trains from St. Louis, as well as for their arrival, highly uncertain. A similar situation existed here two years ago, when heavy storms caused prolonged interruption in train service. Dining cars, parlor cars, and in most cases sleeping cars would soon be discontinued, and travel would return to the conditions of early railroading.

Using West Virginia Coal.

The railroads are now using West Virginia coal so far as possible, it was stated at regional headquarters, in order to let the public have the remaining product from the Illinois mines, which is cheaper.

Chairman Greenlaw issued a request that any case of profiteering be reported to the Regional Coal Committee, Fullerton building, that the dealer may be dealt with.

Coal miners in Southern and Central Illinois today sustained a reaction from the strike, when it was announced that the seven grammar schools in Belleville, a stronghold of the strikers, will be closed after tomorrow, until more coal is received. At the same time, officials of the Southern Illinois Light and Power Co., which supplies current to about 30 towns, announced that no more light or power will be furnished to lodges, theaters, clubs, picture shows, saloons or poolrooms.

Superintendent of Schools Weber of Belleville said that the High School had enough coal to remain open for several days, but that the supply for grammar schools will be exhausted tomorrow. A large percentage of the pupils are miners' children.

Several Towns Affected.

One particular case of the reaction is that of the Collinsville Labor Temple, where the miners hold their meetings. No light or power will be supplied to it hereafter, or to the movie show which it contains. Other Southern Illinois towns affected are Greenville, O'Fallon, Hillsboro, Marine, Vitt, St. Jacobs, Pocahontas, Troy and Trenton, besides many farther north.

C. K. Waste, assistant superintendent of the company's central power plant, at Collinsville, said that the Fuel Committee had allotted the company just 50 per cent of its normal fuel supply, and that it would accordingly be necessary to stop 50 per cent of the normal consumption.

East St. Louis, the terminus of 19 coal-hauling railroads, and virtually surrounded by mines on three sides, is suffering severely from the shortage. The supply at the Children's Detention Home and the Day Nursery is almost exhausted. A number of persons have appealed to Overseer of the Poor Ross to compel dealers who have coal to sell to them. The dealers say they are taking care of their regular customers.

COAL FOR FOREIGN FLAG SHIPS TO BE DISCONTINUED ON DEC. 5

Announcement in Compliance With Order From the Fuel Administration.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The furnishing of bunker coal for foreign flag steamships will be discontinued at all United States ports after 1 a. m. Dec. 5, it was announced here today by the Tidewater Coal Exchange.

This, officials of the exchange said, is in compliance with an order received from the Fuel Administration at Washington.

HENRY CLAY FRICK, ONE OF WEALTHIEST MEN IN U. S., DIES

Succumbs to Complications Following Attack of Ptomaine Poison From Which He Had Nearly Recovered.

ENORMOUS FORTUNE IN COKE AND STEEL

Became Known in Later Years as One of the World's Greatest Collectors of Master Paintings.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Henry Clay Frick—capitalist, pioneer steel manufacturer and art collector—died suddenly at his Fifth avenue home this morning following an attack of ptomaine poisoning from which he had been suffering for several weeks. He was 69 years old.

The passing of Frick was not expected by members of his family, and only his butler, Oscar Rodgers, was with him when he died. Just before 5 o'clock he asked for a drink of water, and after it was given to him he murmured: "I think I will go to sleep." Immediately afterward he relaxed, apparently exhausted, and the butler's efforts to rouse him were unsuccessful. Rodgers then called members of the family, and Dr. Lewis A. Conner. When Dr. Conner arrived the financier was beyond medical aid.

Several members of the family were at the home when he died. They included Mrs. Frick, his daughter, Miss Helen Frick, and his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Childs Frick.

Financiers familiar with Frick's interests estimated today that his fortune was not less than $200,000,000. It was said he was one of the very largest individual holders of Liberty and Victory Bonds.

Frick retained a keen interest in business and finance up to the time of his last illness. His last public appearance was at a banquet given by the American Iron and Steel Institute in honor of King Albert of the Belgians.

Dr. Conner said today that Frick had shown for the last month symptoms of an organic affection of the heart which presumably was the result of severe attacks of inflammatory rheumatism, to which he was subject in early life. The physician declared Frick's death came "in the midst" of what seemed to be a satisfactory improvement in his condition.

The funeral, which will be private, probably will be held tomorrow afternoon at the family home. The services will be conducted by the Right Rev. Charles Sumner Burch, Bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New York. Burial will be made in Pittsburg.

Frick's art collection, one of the finest in the world and valued at many millions of dollars, will be kept intact at the Frick home and probably will be bequeathed either to the city or State of New York as a permanent testimonial of his affection for his fellow citizens, according to a statement made today by a close friend of the family.

Frick Worth From $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.

The career of Henry Clay Frick has formed one of the most fascinating chapters in the romance of industry in the United States. At 10, a boy on a farm in a family of only ordinary means, he was, at 60, a man of so many millions that his fortune, like those of Carnegie and Rockefeller, was largely a matter of guesswork even to himself. It has been said he was worth more than $100,000,000, perhaps as much as $200,000,000.

Frick built up the greatest coke business in the world, and acquired such vast interests in steel that he was also one of the principal magnates in that industry, and in rounding out his career he became known as one of the world's greatest collectors of master paintings.

Frick was born Dec. 19, 1849, at West Overton, Pa. This village was named after the maternal grandfather of Frick, Abram Overholt, whose original family name was Oberholtzer, and who settled in Western Pennsylvania when that region was regarded as the frontier of civilization. As the settlements along the Allegheny and Monongahela grew, and Pittsburg emerged from its swaddling clothes, Overholt became the leading miller and distiller of Western Pennsylvania. His daughter, Elizabeth, married John W. Frick, a young man of Swiss ancestry, who at that time was working as an engineer in the Overholt distillery. It was from this union that the future capitalist was born. The father attempted farming, but did not make a remarkable success of it, and, as a result, young Henry Clay Frick was practically adopted into the Overholt family when he was

PLAN TO WIDEN OLIVE STREET IS DISCUSSED

City Plan Project to Broaden Thoroughfare Between Twelfth Street and Channing Avenue Is Explained.

COST ESTIMATED AT $2,000,000

City Would Have to Pay $600,000 and Property Owners the Remainder—Many Owners for It.

Nearly 100 persons interested in Olive street property were in the Board of Public Service chamber this morning, to hear the presentation of the City Plan Commission's proposal for the widening of Olive street, between Twelfth street and Channing avenue, from 60 to 100 feet, by taking 40 feet from lots on the south side of the street.

Of 40 persons who remained at the end of a two hours' discussion, 30 voted in favor of the improvement and 10 against it, though all but four of the latter said they thought the street should be widened. They argued that the widening should affect both sides of the street instead of the south side only.

The work is estimated to cost $2,000,000, of which the city's share would be about $600,000, property owners paying the balance. The money for the city's share has not been provided, and it is not known where it would come from, so that the improvement at present is only in the stage of discussion.

Many Owners Approve.

Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission, outlined the plan. He said nearly 50 per cent of the property owners on the street had signed petitions approving the widening.

Bartholomew said that the narrowness of Olive street, and the consequent lack of development along the street in the central part of the city, gives many persons an unfavorable impression of the city. He said, however, that the main requirement was one of business necessity, and not of beauty.

"A 100-foot width is a minimum for desirability," he argued. "Already we have seen values increase along Locust street by reason of the Lindell-Locust cut-off. Recent sales along Washington avenue, between Jefferson and Grand, indicate an appreciation of value even before the improvement is made. They will continue to increase after Washington avenue has been widened. A cut-off soon will be made between Delmar avenue and Morgan street at Grand, and Morgan street is now being widened between Twelfth and Fourteenth, thus completing a new route from the central business district to the western part of the city. Likewise, Pine and Chestnut streets are to receive an impetus in development through the opening of a cut-off at Grand avenue, connecting them directly with West Pine boulevard. Thus, from Market street as far north as Morgan, something has been done to increase the usefulness of each street except Olive. If Olive street is to hold its own, something must be done, and the only thing that can be done is to widen the street.

Would Take 40 Feet.

"By taking 40 feet from the property on the south side there will remain lot depths of at least 69 feet or more except in the block immediately west of Jefferson avenue. A lot depth of 69 feet is satisfactory for business purposes. Many of the commercial buildings along Locust street now have a depth of no more than 70 feet. When Michigan boulevard was recently widened in Chicago, the property at the northeast corner of Randolph street was left with a depth of 68.7 feet, or practically what will be left along Olive street. This particular property at Randolph street and Michigan boulevard in Chicago was valued at $350,000 previous to the widening of the boulevard. It had an original depth of 128.7 feet; for the 60 feet which the city took away the owner was paid net damages amounting to $300,000, leaving him an investment of approximately $50,000. He recently refused an offer of $750,000 for this same piece of property, and real estate experts in Chicago agree that he can get more than $1,000,000 for it at any time."

Albert T. Terry, a real estate man, said he woud prefer to have the widening done on both sides, as he thought the taking of 40 feet from the south side would leave the lots of insufficient depth. However, he said, the widening was needed, and he was ready to approve the present plan if there is no other way to do it. Dinks L. Parrish, proprietor of a laundry at 3124 Olive street, said he could not carry on his business if 40 feet were cut off his lot. Louis H. Hall, a property owner, argued against the plan on the ground that it would destroy buildings needed in housing.

Text of President's Message Read to Congress Today

FOLLOWING is the text of President Wilson's annual message to Congress, which, because of Mr. Wilson's illness, was read in both houses by the clerks:

"I sincerely regret that I cannot be present at the opening of this session of the Congress. I am thus prevented from presenting in as direct a way as I could wish the many questions that are pressing for solution at this time. Happily, I have had the advantage of the advice of the heads of the several executive departments who have kept in close touch with affairs in their detail, and those thoughtful recommendations I earnestly second.

"In the matter of the railroads and the readjustment of their affairs growing out of Federal control, I shall take the liberty at a later day of addressing you.

Recommends Budget System.

"I hope that Congress will bring to a conclusion at this session legislation looking to the establishment of a budget system. That there should be one single authority responsible for the making of all appropropriations and that appropriations should be made not independently of each other, but with reference to one single comprehensive plan of expenditure properly related to the nation's income, there can be no doubt. I believe the burden of preparing the budget must, in the nature of the case, if the work is to be properly done and responsibility concentrated, instead of divided, rest upon the executive. The budget so prepared should be submitted to and approved or amended by a single committee of each House of Congress, except such as may have been included in the budget prepared by the executive or added by the particular committee of Congress charged with the budget legislation.

"Another and not less important aspect of the problem is the ascertainment of the economy and efficiency with which the moneys appropriated are expended. Under existing law the only audit is for the purpose of ascertaining whether expenditures have been lawfully made within the appropriations. No one is authorized or equipped to ascertain whether the money has been spent wisely, economically and effectively. The auditors should be highly trained officials with permanent tenure in the treasury department, free of obligations to or motives of consideration for this or any subsequent administration, and authorized and empowered to examine into and make report upon the methods employed and the results obtained by the executive departments of the Government. Their reports should be made to the Congress, and to the Secretary of the Treasury.

"I trust that the Congress will give its immediate consideration to the problem of future taxation. Simplification of the income and profits taxes has become an immediate necessity. These taxes performed indispensable service during the war. They must, however, be simplified, not only to save the taxpayer inconvenience and expense, but in order that his liability may be made certain and definite.

Discusses Income Taxes.

"With reference to the details of the revenue law, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue will lay before you for your consideration certain amendments necessary or desirable in connection with the administration of the law—recommendations which have my approval and support. It is of the utmost importance that in dealing with this matter the present law should not be disturbed so far as regards taxes for the calendar year of 1920, payable in the calendar year 1921.

"The Congress might well consider whether the higher rates of income and profits taxes can in peace times be effectively productive of revenue and whether they may not, on the contrary, be destructive of business activity and productive of waste and inefficiency. There is a point at which in peace times high rates of income and profits taxes discourage energy, remove the incentive to new enterprise, encourage extravagant expenditures and produce industrial stagnation with consequent unemployment and other attendant evils.

"The problem is not an easy one. A fundamental change has taken place with reference to the position of America in the world's affairs. The prejudice and passions engendered by decades of controversy between two schools of political and economic thought—the one believers in protection of American industries, the other believers in tariff for revenue only—must be subordinated to the single consideration of the public interest in the light of utterly changed conditions. Before the war America was heavily the debtor of the rest of the world and the interest payments she had to make to foreign countries on American securities held abroad, the expenditures of American travelers abroad and the ocean freight charges she had to pay to others, about balanced the value of her pre-war favorable balance of trade. During the war America's exports have been greatly stimulated, and increased prices have increased their value. On the other hand, she has purchased a large proportion of the American securities previously held abroad, has loaned some $9,000,000,000 to foreign Governments, and has built her own ships.

How Conditions Have Changed.

"Our favorable balance of trade has thus been greatly increased and Europe has been deprived of the means of meeting it heretofore existing. Europe can have only three ways of meeting the favorable balance of trade in peace times: By imports into this country of gold or of goods, or by establishing new credits. Europe is in no position at the present time to ship gold to us nor could we contemplate large further imports of gold into this country without concern. The time has nearly passed for international governmental loans and it will take time to develop in this country a market for foreign securities. Anything, therefore, which would tend to prevent foreign countries from settling for our exports by shipments of goods into this country could only have the effect of preventing them from paying for our exports and therefore of preventing the exports from being made. The productivity of the country, greatly stimulated by the war must find an outlet by exports to foreign countries and any measures taken to prevent imports will inevitably curtail exports, force curtailment of production, load the banking machinery of the country with credits to carry unsold products and produce industrial stagnation and unemployment. If we want to sell, we must be prepared to buy. Whatever, therefore may have been our views during the period of growth of American business concerning tariff legislation we must now adjust our own economic life to a changed condition growing out of the fact that American business is full grown and that America is the greatest capitalist in the world.

"No policy of isolation will satisfy the growing needs and opportunities of America. The provincial standards and policies of the past, which have held American business as if in a straitjacket, must yield and give way to the needs and exigencies of the new day in which we live, a day full of hope and promise for American business, if we will but take advantage of the opportunities that are ours for the asking. The recent war has ended our isolation and thrown upon us a great duty and responsibility. The United States must share the expanding world market. The United States desires for itself only equal opportunity with the other nations of the world, and that through the process of friendly co-operation and fair competition the legitimate interests of the nations concerned may be successfully and equitably adjusted.

Renews Recommendations.

"There are other matters of importance upon which I urged action at the last session of Congress which are still pressing for solution. I am sure it is not necessary for me again to remind you that there is one immediate and very practicable question resulting from the war which we should meet in the most liberal spirit. It is a matter of recognition and relief to our soldiers. I can do no better than to quote from my last message urging this very action:

"We must see to it that our returning soldiers are assisted in every practicable way to find the places for which they are fitted in the daily work of the country. This can be done by developing and maintaining upon an adequate scale the admirable organization created by the Department of Labor for placing men seeking work; and it can also be done, in at least one very great field, by creating new opportunities for individual enterprise. The Secretary of the Interior has pointed out the way by which returning soldiers may be helped to find and take up land in the hitherto undeveloped regions of the country which the Federal Government has already prepared or can readily prepare for cultivation, and also on many of the cut-over or neglected areas which lie within the limits of the older states; and I once more take the liberty of recommending very urgently that his plans shall receive the immediate and substantial support of the Congress.

"In the matter of tariff legislation, I beg to call your atten-

PRESIDENT URGES BUDGET SYSTEM AND TAX REFORM

Says in Annual Message Tariff Laws Should Be Made to Conform to Our New Position and Taxes Should Meet Peace Time Requirements.

WOULD EXTEND FOOD LAW TO PEACE TIME

Declares Right to Strike Is Inviolate, but There Is Predominant Duty in Government to Protect People From Any Minority.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—General recommendations on legislation to combat the cost of living, labor unrest, radicalism and a readjustment of the nation to peace-time basis were the features of President Wilson's annual message to Congress delivered today.

The peace treaty, the President told Congress, will be discussed in a separate message later, as will the railroad question.

For the second time only, since the President established the practice of addressing the Congress in person, his message was read today by the clerks.

Principal Recommendations.

The President's principal recommendations were:

Establishment of a budget system for the national finances.

Reorganization of the taxation system with simplification of the income and excess profits taxes.

Readjustments of the tariff system, if necessary, to meet changed world conditions and make the system conform with the fact that the United States is "the greatest capitalist in the world."

Recognition and relief for veteran soldiers of the world war, particularly in the way of Government farms as proposed by Secretary Lane.

Proper measures to foster the dyestuffs industry built up during the war to keep the United States independent of foreign supply.

An enlarged program for rural development, in recognition of the farmers' part in the war.

Measures which "will remove the causes" of "political restlessness in our body politic."

At this point the President made his most extensive reference to the peace treaty by saying the causes for the "unrest are superficial rather than deep-seated," and that they "arise from or are connected with the failure on the part of our Government to arrive speedily at a just and permanent peace permitting return to normal conditions, from the transfusion of radical theories from seething European centers pending such delay, from heartless profiteering resulting from the increase of the cost of living, and lastly from the machinations of passionate and malevolent agitators. With the return to normal conditions this unrest will rapidly disappear."

The President renewed his recommendations for legislation to deal effectively with "those persons who by violent methods would abrogate our time-tested institutions."

Laws to Reduce Prices.

Several recommendations, some renewals of previous ones, were made by the President to bring down the cost of living. Among them were extension of the food control law to peace times for the emergency; regulations for transportation of foods in interstate commerce; a cold storage law modeled after the law in New Jersey; a law requiring marks to show the length of time foods are kept in storage and a law to secure "competitive selling and prevent unconscionable profits" by Federal license of corporations selling food in interstate commerce.

A long portion of the message was devoted to a discussion of the condition and rights of labor. "A definite program to bring about an improvement in the conditions of labor" and bring about a genuine democratization of industry was recommended.

"The only way to keep men from agitating against grievances is to remove the grievances," said the President's message. At another point it declared "the seed of revolution is repression."

"The establishment of the principles regarding labor, laid down in the covenant of the league of nations," said the message, "offers us the way to industrial peace and conciliation. No other road lies open to tion to the statements contained in my last message urging legislation with reference to the establishment of the chemical and dyestuffs industry in America.

URGES ESTABLISHMENT OF TRIBUNAL FOR SETTLEMENT OF INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES

"Among the industries to which special consideration should be given is that of the manufacture of dyestuffs and related chemicals. Our complete dependence upon German supplies before the war made the interruption of trade a cause of exceptional economic disturbance. The close relation between the manufacture of dyestuffs, on the one hand, and of explosives and poisonous gases on the other, moreover, has given the industry an exceptional significance and value. Although the United States will gladly and unhesitatingly join in the program of international disarmament, it will, nevertheless, be a policy of obvious prudence to make certain of the successful maintenance of many strong and well-equipped chemical plants. The German chemical industry, with which we will be brought into competition, was and may well be again a thoroughly knit monopoly capable of exercising a competition of a peculiarly insidious and dangerous kind."

Legislation for Farmers.

"During the war the farmer performed a vital and willing service to the nation. By materially increasing the production of his land, he supplied America and the allies with the increased amounts of food necessary to keep their immense armies in the field. He indispensably helped to win the war. But there is now scarcely less need of increasing the production in food and the necessaries of life. I ask the Congress to consider means of encouraging effort along these lines. The importance of doing everything possible to promote production along economical lines, to improve marketing and to make rural life more attractive and healthful, is obvious. I would urge approval of the plans already proposed to the Congress by the Secretary of Agriculture, to secure the essential facts required for the proper study of this question, through the proposed enlarged programs for farm management studies and crop estimates. I would urge, also, the continuance of Federal participation in the building of good roads, under the terms of existing law and under the direction of present agencies; the need of further action on the part of the states and the Federal Government to preserve and develop our forest resources, especially through the practice of better forestry methods on private holdings and the extension of the publicly owned forests; better support for country schools and the more definite direction of their courses of study along lines related to rural problems; and fuller provision for sanitation in rural districts and the building up of needed hospital and medical facilities in these localities. Perhaps the way might be cleared for many of these desirable reforms by a fresh comprehensive survey made of rural conditions by a conference composed of representatives of the farmers and of the agricultural agencies responsible for leadership.

Causes of Unrest.

"I would call your attention to the widespread condition of political restlessness in our body politics. The causes of this unrest, while various and complicated, are superficial rather than deep seated. Broadly, they arise from or are connected with the failure on the part of our Government to arrive speedily at a just and permanent peace permitting return to normal conditions, from the transfusion of radical theories from seething European centers pending such delay, from heartless profiteering resulting in the increase of the cost of living, and lastly from the machinations of passionate and malevolent agitators. With the return to normal conditions, this unrest will rapidly disappear. In the meantime, it does much evil. It seems to me that in dealing with this situation Congress should not be impatient or drastic, but should seek rather to remove the causes. It should endeavor to bring our country back speedily to a peace basis, with ameliorated living conditions under the minimum restrictions upon personal liberty that is consistent with our reconstruction problems. And it should arm the Federal Government with power to deal in its criminal courts with those persons who by violent methods would abrogate our time-tested institutions. With the free expression of opinion and with the advocacy of orderly political change, however fundamental, there must be no interference, but towards passion and malevolence tending to incite crime and insurrection under guise of political evolution there should be no leniency. Legislation to this end has been recommended by the Attorney-General and should be enacted. In this direct connection I would call your attention to my recommendations on Aug. 8, pointing out legislative measures which would be effective in controlling and bringing down the present cost of living, which contributes so largely to this unrest. On only one of these recommendations has the Congress acted. If the Government's campaign is to be effective, it is necessary that the other steps suggested should be acted on at once.

Extension of Food Law.

"I renew and strongly urge the necessity of the extension of the present food control act as to the period of time in which it shall remain in operation. The Attorney-General has submitted a bill providing for an extension of this act for a period of six months. As it now stands it is limited in operation to the period of the war, and becomes inoperative upon the formal proclamation of peace. It is imperative that it should be extended at once. The Department of Justice has built up extensive machinery for the purpose of enforcing its provisions; all of which must be abandoned upon the conclusion of peace unless the provisions of this act are extended.

"During this period the Congress will have an opportunity to make similar, permanent provisions and regulations with regard to all goods destined for interstate commerce and to exclude them from interstate shipment, if the requirements of the law are not complied with. Some such regulation is imperatively necessary. The abuses that have grown up in the manipulation of prices by the withholding of foodstuffs and other necessaries of life cannot otherwise be effectively prevented. There can be no doubt of either the necessity or the legitimacy of such measures. As I pointed out in my last message, publicity can accomplish a great deal in this connection. The aims of the Government must be clearly brought to the attention of the consuming public, civic organizations and State officials, who are in a position to lend their assistance to our efforts. You have made available funds with which to carry on this campaign, but there is no provision in the law authorizing their expenditure for the purpose of making the public fully informed about the efforts of the Government. Specific recommendation has been made by the Attorney-General in this regard. I would strongly urge upon you its immediate adoption, as it constitutes one of the preliminary steps in this campaign.

Would Mark Storage Foods.

"I also renew my recommendation that the Congress pass a law regulating cold storage as it is regulated, for example, by the laws of the State of New Jersey, which limit the time during which goods may be kept in storage, prescribe the method of disposing of them if kept beyond the permitted period and require that goods released from storage shall in all cases bear the date of their receipt. It would materially add to the serviceability of the law, for the purpose we now have in view, if it were also prescribed that all goods released from storage for interstate shipment should have plainly marked upon each package the selling or market price at which they went into storage. By this means the purchaser would always be able to learn what profits stood between him and the producer or the wholesale dealer.

"I would also renew my recommendation that all goods destined for interstate commerce should in every case, where their form or package makes it possible, be plainly marked with the price at which they left the hands of the producer.

"We should formulate a law requiring a Federal license of all corporations engaged in interstate commerce and embodying in the license, or in the conditions under which it is to be issued, specific regulations designed to secure competitive selling and prevent unconscionable profits in the method of marketing. Such a law would afford a welcome opportunity to effect other needed reforms in the business of interstate shipment and in the methods of corporations which are engaged in it; but for the moment I confine my recommendations to the object immediately in hand, which is to lower the cost of living.

"No one who has observed the march of events in the last year can fail to note the absolute need of a definite program to bring about an improvement in the conditions of labor. There can be no settled conditions leading to increased production and a reduction in the cost of living if labor and capital are to be antagonists, instead of partners. Sound thinking and an honest desire to serve the interests of the whole nation, as distinguished from the interets of a class, must be applied to the solution of this great and pressing problem. The faiude of other nations to consider this matter in a vigorous way has produced bitterness and jealousies and antagonisms, the food of radicalism.

"The only way to keep men from agitating against grievances is to remove the grievances. An unwillingness even to discuss these matters produces only dissatisfaction and gives comfort to the extreme elements in our country which endeavor to stir up disturbances in order to provoke governments to embark upon a course of retaliation and repression. The seed of revolution is repression. The remedy for these things must not be negative in character. It must be constructive. It must comprehend the general interest. The real antidote for the unrest which manifests itself is not suppression, but a deep consideration of the wrongs that beset our national life and the application of a remedy.

"Congress has already shown its willingness to deal with these industrial wrongs by establishing the eight-hour day as the standard in every field of labor. It has sought to find a way to prevent child labor. It has served the whole country by leading the way in developing the means of preserving and safeguarding lives and health in dangerous industries. It must now help in the difficult task of finding a method that will bring about a genuine democratization of industry, based upon the full recognition of the right of those who work, in whatever rank, to participate in some organic way in every decision which directly affects their welfare. It is with this purpose in mind that I called a conference to meet in Washington on Dec. 1, to consider these problems in all their broad aspects, with the ideal of bringing about a better understanding between these two interests.

Recognized Rights of Labor.

"The great unrest throughout the world, out of which has emerged a demand for an immediate consideration of the difficulties between capital and labor, bids us put our own house in order. Frankly, there can be no permanent and lasting settlements between capital and labor which do not recognize the fundamental concepts for which labor has been struggling through the years. The whole world gave its recognition and indorsement to these fundamental purposes in the league of nations. The statesmen gathered at Versailles recognized the fact that world stability could not be had by reverting to industrial standards and conditions against which the average workman of the world had revolted. It is, therefore, the task of the statesmen of this new day of change and readjustment to recognize world conditions and to seek to bring about through legislation conditions that will mean the ending of age-long antagonisms between capital and labor and that will hopefully lead to the building up of a comradeship which will result not only in greater contentment among the mass of workmen, but also bring about a greater production and a greater prosperity to business itself.

"To analyze the particulars in the demands of labor is to admit the justice of their complaint in many matters that lie at their basis. The workman demands an adequate wage, sufficient to permit him to live in comfort, unhampered by the fear of poverty and want in his old age. He demands the right to live and the right to work amongst sanitary surroundings, both in home and in workshop, surroundings that develop and do not retard his own health and well being; and the right to provide for his children's wants in the matter of health and education. In other words, it is his desire to make the conditions of his life and the lives of those dear to him tolerable and easy to bear.

Necessity for Action.

"The establishment of the principles regarding labor laid down in the covenant of the league of nations offers us the way to industrial peace and conciliation. No other road lies open to us. Not to pursue this one is longer to invite enmities, bitterness and antagonisms which in the end, only lead to industrial and social disaster. The unwilling workman is not a profitable servant. An employe whose industrial life is hedged about by hard and unjust conditions, which he did not create and over which he has no control, lacks that fine spirit of enthusiasm and volunteer effort which are the necessary ingredients of a great producing entity. Let us be frank about this solemn matter.

"The evidences of world-wide unrest which manifest themselves in violence throughout the world bid us pause and consider the means to be found to stop the spread of this contagious thing before it saps the very vitality of the nation itself. Do we gain strength by withholding the remedy? Is it not the business of statesmen to treat these manifestations of unrest which meet us on every hand as evidences of an economic disorder and to apply constructive remedies wherever necessary, being sure that in the application of the remedy we touch not the vital tissues of our industrial and economic life? There can be no recession of the tide of unrest until constructive instrumentalities are set up to stem that tide.

Labor Not a Commodity.

"Governments must recognize the right of men collectively to bargain for humane objects that have at their base the mutual protection and welfare of those engaged in all industries. Labor must not be longer treated as a commodity. It must be regarded as the activity of human beings, possessed of deep yearnings and desires. The business man gives his best thought to the repair and replenishment of his machinery, so that its usefulness will not be impaired and its power to produce may always be at its height and kept in full vigor and motion. No less regard ought to be paid to the human machine, which, after all, propels the machinery of the world and is the great dynamic force that lies back of all industry and progress. Return to the old standards of wage and industry in employment are unthinkable.

"The terrible tragedy of war which has just ended and which has brought the world to the verge of chaos and disaster would be in vain if there should ensue a return to the conditions of the past. Europe itself, whence has come the unrest which now holds the world at bay, is an example of standpattism in these vital human matters which America might well accept as an example, not to be followed, but studiously to be avoided. Europe made labor the differential, and the price of it all is enmity and antagonism and prostrated industry. The right of labor to live in peace and comfort must be recognized by Governments, and America should be the first to lay the foundation stones upon which industrial peace shall be built.

"Labor not only is entitled to an adequate wages, but capital should receive a reasonable return upon its investment and is entitled to protection at the hands of the Government in every emergency. No Government worthy of the name can 'play' these elements against each other, for there is a mutuality of interest between them which the Government must seek to express and safeguard at all cost.

Right of Government.

"The right of individuals to strike is inviolate and ought not to be interfered with by any process of government, but there is a predominant right and that is the right of the Government to protect all of its people and to assert its power and majesty against the challenge of any class. The Government, when it asserts that right, seeks not to antagonize a class but simply to defend the right of the whole people as against the irreparable harm and injury that might be done by the attempt by any class to usurp a power that only Government itself has a right to exercise as a protection to all.

"In the matter of international disputes which have led to war, statemen have sought to set up as a remedy arbitration for war. Does this not point the way for the settlement of industrial disputes, by the establishment of a tribunal, fair and just alike to all, which will settle industrial disputes which, in the past, have led to war and disaster? America, witnessing the evil consequences which have followed out of such disputes between the contending forces, must not admit itself impotent to deal with these matters by means of peaceful processes. Surely, there must be some method of bringing together in a council of peace and amity these two great interests, out of which will come a happier day of peace and co-operation. A day that will make for more comfort and happiness in living and a more tolerable condition among all classes of men. Certainly human intelligence can devise some acceptable tribunal for adjusting the differences between capital and labor.

Right Road, Orderly Process.

"This is the hour of test and trial for America. By her prowess and strength and the indomitable courage of her soldiers she demonstrated her power to vindicate on foreign battlefields her conception of liberty and justice. Let not her influence as a mediator between capital and labor be weakened and her own failure to settle matters of purely domestic concern be proclaimed to the world. There are those in this country who threaten direct action to force their will upon a majority. Russia today, with its blood and terror, is a painful object lesson of the power of minorities. It makes little difference what minority it is, whether capital or labor, or any class, no sort of privilege will ever be permitted to dominate this country. We are a partnership or nothing that is worth while. We are a democracy, where the majority are the masters, or all the hopes and purposes of the men who founded this Government have been defeated and forgotten.

"In America there is but one way by which great reforms can be accomplished and the relief sought by classes obtained, and that is through the orderly processes of representative government. Those who would propose any other method of reform are enemies of this country. America will not be daunted by threats nor lose her composure or calmness in these distressing times. We can afford, in the midst of this day of passion and unrest, to be self-contained and sure. The instrument of all reform in America is the straight road of justice to all classes and conditions of men. Men have but to follow this road to realize the full fruition of their objects and purposes. Let those beware who would take the shorter road of disorder and revolution. The right road is the road of justice and orderly process."

JUDGE DELAYS DECISION IN SUIT OF IRL R. HICKS JR. FOR DIVORCE

The application of Irl R. Hicks Jr., son of the late Rev. Irl R. Hicks, who was a widely known weather forecaster, for a divorce from Mrs. Edith Young Hicks, was taken under advisement today by Circuit Judge Wurdemann at Clayton, after Hicks had testified. The Judge said he would withhold his decision for 30 days to give the young people an opportunity to settle their differences.

Hicks said that the marriage took place March 17, 1918, and that shortly after that he went to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. When he returned Nov. 10, last, he said, his wife treated him with indifference, refusing to permit him to accompany her on shopping tours. He said that he fitted up a home for her in Amherst place, but that she was not satisfied. When he took her to task for lack of affection, he said, she told him she was "tired of the whole business," and went to her parents in Coffeyville, Kan. Since the separation Hicks has been living with his mother on Keinlin avenue in Wellston. He filed his suit Nov. 24.

In announcing that he would reserve decision Judge Wurdemann said that he was averse to granting a divorce on trivial grounds. Wives and husbands should learn to give and take, he said.

DAUGHTER OF JOHN H. DAUES TO ATTEMPT TO BREAK WILL

Mrs. Florence English, wife of Charles C. English, 5512 Etzel avenue, has retained an attorney to contest the will of her father, John H. Daues, uncle of Mayor Kiel, bequeathing her $1.

Daues bequeathed to Rose C. Esswein of 1320 Pestalozzi street, his housekeeper and nurse, his stock in the Lone Star Investment Co., $1000 in Liberty Bonds, his household goods, silverware, clothing, watches and jewelry and what remained of his $4000 life insurance after clearing the title to property at Beaumont street and Clark avenue. The will stated that this was in recognition of her faithful service in keeping his house and nursing him and assisting in the management of his property and business.

Daues was secretary of the Kiel & Daues Bricklaying and Contracting Co. and had an interest in the Contracting and Supply Co. He bequeathed his holdings in both companies to Mayor Kiel and gave 20 shares of stock of the Gilsonite Contracting Co. to Elmer Kiel, son of the Mayor. He gave eight shares of stock of the Title Guaranty Co. to a niece, Mrs. Emil Gollar. The residue of his estate was bequeathed to three granddaughters, Myra and Florence Heyde and Coranna Diel.

Mayor Kiel said today that Daues and his daughter had been estranged about 15 years. He said the estate was worth about $15,000.

AMERICAN MISSION POSTPONES ITS DEPARTURE FROM PARIS

Many of the Delegates Will Leave Capital Dec. 5, but Peace Plenipotentiaries Will Stay.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The American delegation to the peace conference, which was to have sailed from Brest for the United States Dec. 6, has postponed its departure for home, it was learned today.

A considerable part of the personnel of the delegation, however, will leave Paris for Brest on the evening of Dec. 5, as previously arranged.

It is learned from a high authority that the change in the plans of the delegations is due to the failure of the Germans to sign the protocol ratifying the peace treaty.

It is possible that if the treaty is not ratified the situation between Germany and the United States, as well as the other allied and associated Powers, goes back to the status created by the armistice.

Hence the United States is still quite as much interested as its associates of the allied Powers, despite the fact that the Senate has not ratified the treaty.

Whatever the date which the American delegation may decide upon for leaving France, it was affirmed today on excellent authority that such arrangements would be made for the representation of the United States in the further negotiations that Germany would find all the allied and associated Powers working together to resist any effort on her part to avoid making the peace effective according to the terms of the treaty.

PALMER URGES PATIENCE DURING THE COAL CRISIS

Advises Against Any Concessions Which "Would Cause Higher Cost of Living for Three Years."

FUEL SAVING ORDER PUT INTO EFFECT

Washington Confident That Slowly Increased Production and Economy Will Save Situation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. — By clamping down on coal consumption, while, at the same time, appealing to the public to endure privations and the miners to return to work, the Fuel Administration has adopted drastic measures to ward off a coal famine in the dead of winter.

Under the order which was issued by the Fuel Administration, jointly with the Railroad Administration, coal is cut off from all industries except those considered absolutely essential.

Renewed efforts are being made to induce miners to accept the Government's award of 14 per cent wage increase.

Call to the People.

A statement of the Government's attitude was made by the Attorney-General in a telegram to the Chamber of Commerce at Moberly, Mo., from which had come a request that another conference of operators and miners be called.

Palmer opposed further conferences, saying the wage increase proposed by Dr. Garfield equalized the average miner's wage with the present high cost of living without increasing the price of coal.

"The cost of living is now at the high point," Palmer said. "To grant the demands of the miners would make the cost of living still higher. The new wage conference would run three winters, and, therefore, would maintain a higher cost of living for substantially three years. Such a situation cannot be tolerated.

"In addition to this, Dr. Garfield suggested a consultative body to investigate more completely the whole situation, to be composed of representatives in equal number of the miners and operators, and to be presided over by the Secretary of the Interior. Such a body would investigate, among other things, the profits of the operators. If these should be found to be unreasonably high, the public should receive the benefit in a decreased price of coal, after the miners have had their wages finally adjusted on a fair basis. I understand this plan is acceptable to the operators. If the miners return to work and agree to this plan, a way would be immediateley open for permanent settlement.

Increase Awaits Miners.

"In the meantime, however, the operators have posted the advance in wages proposed by Dr. Garfield, so that working miners will immediately receive the benefit of this increase.

"The production of coal now closely approximates 50 per cent of normal, and I have confidence that a sufficient number of miners will comply with the wishes of their Government and respond to the needs of the people to increase this production in the near future to a point which will supply the demand if economy and conservation in industry are employed.

"Any other plan to reopen negotiations for a new wage scale between the miners and operators would be futile and would delay rather than advance production. As long as the leaders of the miners' organization believe that their unlawful strike will force the public into a condition of suffering and loss which will compel further increases of wages, continued conferences on the subject will only result in influencing miners not to return to work.

"The situation calls for the steadfast support by the public of the Government's position as discussede by Dr. Garfield."

Dr. Garfield's Notice.

Dr. Garfield's notice that hereafter only the essential consumers included in the first five classes of the war priorities list would be supplied with coal makes national those restrictions already put into local effect by regional committees, and cuts off supplies from all but transportation agencies, which include inland and coastwise shipping as well as railroads; Federal and local Government institutions and establishments, including concerns working on Government contracts, and public utilities, including newspapers and retail dealers. Railroad Administration officials concede that it means widespread cessation of industrial operations only justified by the gravity of the situation.

"It is necessary that coal shall be used only for essential purposes," Dr. Garfield said in giving public notification of the step. "Public utilities consuming coal should discontinue to furnish power, heat and light to nonessential industries and should consume only sufficient coal to produce enough light, power and heat to meet the actual urgent needs of the people. Advertising signs and displays of various kinds necessitating the use of coal should be curtailed and no coal should be distributed for such purposes.

"The State and other local authorities can materially aid in inspecting and supervising such distribution by retail dealers and the United States Government will be glad to leave the supervision and control of such distribution by retail dealers entirely to any State, county or municipality which may make provision therefor. The distribution to the retail dealers must necessarily be administered by the Railroad Administration in pursuance of the orders already made by the United States Fuel Administration in carrying out the priorities which have been prescribed under the Lever act."

Variation in Arrangement.

Officials said the terms of the order as given were framed to allow the greatest possible variation in local arrangements so that emergencies could be met by action best suited to that result. Industrial establishments operating their own power plants will be forced to shut down when present supplies are exhausted, while the operations of those whose power is supplied from public utility plants will be curtailed or continued in the discretion of local agencies and officials.

These arrangements, it was suggested, would all be maintained while they proved adequate, but the Federal Government would hold a final power to intervene by cutting off coal supplies where rationing measures are not being fairly or fully taken.

Kansas City Dark Last Night; Business Hours Curtailed.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 2.—Kansas City was dark last night. The campaign to save fuel to meet the emergency caused by the miners' strike was in full force and to all outward appearances it was a wartime city again.

Gone were the myriads of incandescent lights. Here and there an arc, classed as essential, assisted pedestrians in feeling their way across icy pavements, made doubly disagreeable by a fine drizzle of sleet and rain that began falling at dark. In the residence districts homes usually brilliantly lighted were in virtual darkness.

Business houses are opening at 9 a. m. and closing at 4 p. m. Schools are closed and amusement places not allowed to open.

Farrington Hints Hard Coal Miners May Aid Mine Strikers.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 2.—The miners have not utilized the full strength of their organization, Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, said today in a statement in which he declared that "there is a likelihood that should the bituminous miners find themselves hard pressed in this case the anthracite miners may decide to come to their aid."

ALTON COMPANY TO MAKE CARTRIDGES FOR KOLCHAK

Acceptance of Large Russian Contract Will Mean Resumption of Wartime Production.

The Western Cartridge Co. at Alton today made it known that it had accepted a contract to make cartridges for the Kolchak government in Russia of sufficient size to justify the resumption of wartime production, which means the increase of the number of employes from 1200 to 2700 and the employment of all the machinery used in peak-load production during the war.

It was stated that within three months the company expects to be making 1,000,000 cartridges a day. The amount of money involved was not made known.

Mexican Newspapers Propose Commission to Regain Good Will

By Telegraph to the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.

THE undersigned representatives of the most important newspapers of Mexico are well aware of the possible imminence of a rupture in the relations between the United States and Mexico.

We believe that such a rupture would be due to a lack of mutual knowledge of both peoples, whereupon we have today applied to President Carranza, suggesting to him the appointment of a delegation formed by two secretaries of his Cabinet, two Senators, two Representatives of the House and three private citizens, which may put itself in touch with a similar delegation appointed by the United States Government, in order that this delegation may discuss and clear any differences between both Governments, thus avoiding the consequences that may befall upon our countries as an out come of enmity.

We earnestly invite you, invoking the world partnership of the press, to give your support to this motion, and to ask President Wilson to accept the move we are here proposing. Thanks.

PERSHING MAY APPEAR AT COLISEUM DEC. 22

Decoration of Sergt. Ellis to Give Public Chance to See A. E. F. Commander.

The chief opportunity of the general public to see Gen. Pershing when he visits St. Louis on Monday, Dec. 22, will be the ceremony of his decoration of Sergt. Michael B. Ellis of 1308 Cass avenue with the Congressional Medal of Honor, award of which was made by the President for Ellis, single-handed accounting for 52 Germans and 10 machine guns.

Plans at this time contemplate that the ceremony shall take place out of doors if the weather is sufficiently mild, and in the Coliseum, the building of largest capacity in the city, if the weather is cold or stormy.

Another opportunity for the general public to glimpse the leader of the American Expeditionary forces will be an automobile parade over a route similar to those taken by the President and King Albert upon their recent visit to the city.

Another tentative plan for the General's reception to Missouri is a luncheon which, like those to Albert and Wilson, likely will be under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. The General will spend 12 hours in the city, arriving at 8 a. m. and departing for his birthplace, Laclede, Mo., at 8 p. m.

More conclusive action on the plans will be taken this afternoon at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce of the Mayor's Welcome Home Committee on which Edward Hidden is chairman and James E. Smith vice chairman.

A telegram from "Col. March, aid de camp," was received by Mayor Kiel today in which it was stated that Gen. Pershing would be accompanied to St. Louis by nine staff officers. It also stated that acceptance by the General of numerous invitations from St. Louis clubs and societies had been withheld awaiting the plans of the municipal authorities.

LATEST AMERICAN NOTE TO MEXICO NOT DELIVERED

Errors in Cable Transmission Are Believed to Be Responsible for Delay.

MEXICO CITY, Monday, Dec. 1.—Announcement was made at the Mexican Foreign Office late tonight that the latest American note had not been delivered. First intimations as to the nature of the communication sent to Mexico by Secretary of State Lansing were given by dispatches to this city by the Associated Press. It was learned at the American embassy that there were numerous errors in the cable transmission of the note, which probably explains the delay in its presentation.

Hilario Medina, Undersecretary of Foreign Relations, declared today that treaties existing between Mexico and the United States make no provision for the exemption of consular agents from the jurisdiction of Federal tribunals "for which reason W. O. Jenkins, the United States Consular Agent at Puebla, because of whose imprisonment a delicate situation has arisen between the two countries, cannot claim immunity as has been suggested by his friends."

$1,043,080,500 IN BONDS RETIRED BY GOVERNMENT

Treasury Makes Profit of $35,000,000 in 18 Months and Reduces the Public Debt.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—More than one billion dollars worth of Liberty Bonds were bought by the treasury and retired during the last 18 months, yielding the Government a profit of approximately $35,000,000 and reducing the public debt, Secretary Glass reported today to Congress.

Purchases were made to stabilize the market for these securities, par values being $1,043,080,500 and the cost to the Government $993,363,526 in addition to $14,204,779 accrued interest. First loan purchases totaled $25,115,000; second, $371,215,000; third, 278,635,500, and fourth, $368,115,000.

J. W. ALEXANDER OF MISSOURI WILL SUCCEED REDFIELD

States Commission to the International Conference on Safety of Life at Sea and served as chairman of the commission during its sessions at London in the winter of 1913-14. Later as chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries he framed much of the legislation that resulted from the conference.

Because of his resignation from Congress it will be necessary for Gov. Gardner to call a special election in the Third District, the Constitution of the United States requiring that elections must be held to fill vacancies in Congress. In the last election, which was considered almost a Republican landslide in Missouri, the Third District went Democratic by 1793. Alexander's opponent was John E. Frost of Plattsburg, Clinton County, who, it is expected, will be the Republican nominee in the special election.

OVERCOATS WORN IN OFFICE

Overcoats and gloves were worn by attaches in the United States Marshal's office in the Federal Building today, the coldest day of the season, because all the windows had been taken out in order to equip them with weather stripping to keep the office warm—in the future.

The contract for equipping the windows this way was let about four weeks ago, but the two men who are doing the work were just finishing up the job today.

INDICATIONS WOMEN VOTERS HERE WILL NUMBER 120,000

Estimate Based on Returns of Canvass in One Precinct in Each of 17 Wards.

A partial return on the canvass of women voters started yesterday shows that in 17 precincts, one from each of the first 17 wards, there are 1724 women qualified to vote for the first time at the next presidential election and 2091 men so qualified.

In these 17 precincts the number of women is about 82 per cent of the number of men. Election Commissioner Dempsey today said he expected the canvass would consume about five weeks and would show at least 120,000 women voters in St. Louis.

As the expected registration of men is about 190,000, the total number of voters will be approximately 310,000, according to this estimate. As the law requires one precinct polling place to each 300 voters, it is probable it will be necessary to double the number of precincts, which is now 500.

NEWBERRY SAYS HE WILL SHOW "MALIGNITY BEHIND CHARGES"

Welcomes Thorough Investigation, Saying Partisan Politics Inspired Accusations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Denial of the charges of election frauds contained in an indictment returned against him in Michigan was made today by Senator Newberry, Republican of Michigan.

"I do not propose to rest under the charges that my seat was obtained by bribery and corruption," said Senator Newberry. "Such charges are lies made out of whole cloth and I believe the country will realize the political animus inspiring them. Certainly the people of Michigan understand the source which prompts this entire campaign against me. I propose to expose that source, to show the malignity behind it, as well as the use of unlimited money in the attempt to cast a cloud upon my good name and that of my supporters. Because of the necessity of considering the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant the Senate unfortunately did not have time to devote itself to the investigation, which would have resulted in my vindication and in the confirmation of my election.

'I have again requested the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections to pass the resolution and proceed to the investigation immediately. I am assured this will be done."

Senate leaders today arranged to adopt tomorrow Senator Pomerene's resolution proposing investigation of the campaigns of both Senator Newberry and Henry Ford.

The two who pleaded guilty yesterday were William E. Rice, a Grand Rapids printer, who admitted conspiracy, and was released under bond of $1000, and Allie K. Moore, formerly a Grand Rapids newspaper man who, pleaded guilty to four of six counts.

FUEL SITUATION ACUTE AT SOME POINTS IN MISSOURI

Burning Spare Things About the Home Near Mexico; Kirksville to Chop Wood.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., Dec. 2.—The offer of a 14 per cent increase in pay has sent none of the miners of Macon or Bevier back to work and the fuel situation has become so desperate in one nearby community it is reported that the residents are burning everything they can spare about their homes. Merchants, however, say Christmas trade has surpassed all expectations.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Dec. 2.—The 1500 miners of Kirksville and Novinger remain out and fuel relief committees have been appointed to prevent suffering. At a mass meeting here yesterday arrangements were made with mining companies to haul wood choppers to woods three miles from the city. Forty choppers will start cutting wood Wednesday.

A report from Moberly says the Chamber of Commerce has arranged for the opening of the Liberty mine, near that city, with a 75-ton daily capacity. The miners will be paid a 32 per cent advance in wages.

TRAIN BANDIT ELUDES POSSE BY JUMPING THROUGH WINDOW

By the Associated Press.

CASPER, Wyo., Dec. 2.—William Carlisle, train robber, escaped last night from a ranch house on La Bonte Creek near Glendo, Wyo., by leaping through a window when a Sheriff's posse was about to enter to arrest him, according to a telegram received here today from Glendo.

Carlisle, suffering from a wound in his hand, made no effort to hide his identity.

The posse lost Carlisle's trail in a heavy snowstorm. Sheriff Roach of Wheatland, in charge, said he expected to capture the bandit within a few hours. The temperature is 10 degrees below zero.

about 12 years old. He received a good basic schooling, but there was nothing in his boyhood to indicate the remarkable ability which characterized his later life, except his eagerness to get into business. For a time he was bookkeeper in his grandfather' distillery, and from this position he went to Morgan & Co., coke dealers, and at about 21 years of age he appeared in Pittsburg as their agent. The coke industry was in its infancy. The iron masters of Pittsburg were just beginning to appreciate the value of coke for their furnaces.

Young Frick had an opportunity to acquire a limited interest in a plant near Broadford, and out of the profits of this he acquired other holdings. He later joined a company to build a railroad to penetrate the Connelsville coke region, and in 1871, the year this road was opened, Frick organized the corporation of Frick & Co., which bought coal land and coke ovens in the Connelsville region. That was the basis of the Frick fortune. The undivided attention of the rising financier was given to coke until 1882.

Carnegies Took Him In.

In the midst of this period there came the panic of '73 and the financial crash of many ambitious operators. At a Sheriff's sale Frick purchased additional tracts of coal land and ovens, and a few years later the Mellons, powerful Pittsburg bankers, became interested in the expanding enterprise of the young operator.

The Carnegies, then developing their great steel business in Pittsburg, had taken large holdings in the Frick coke company, and in 1882 Frick found the Carnegie brothers willing to admit him as a member of their firm in consideration of his giving them further interests in his coke business. It was thus Frick became also a great manufacturer of steel.

Through the Homestead strike of 1892, Frick came into national prominence. Differences had arisen between the Carnegie Steel Co. and its employes over a wage scale, culminating in a strike involving thousands of men; the calling out of the National Guard and the proclamation of martial law. It was at this period, July 22, 1892, that Alexander Berkman, a New York anarchist, tried to assassinate Frick. Berkman walked into Frick's office, drew a revolver and fired, the bullet lodging in Frick's neck. Frick was shot a second time and then he grappled with Berkman. During the encounter Frick was stabbed three times, but he downed his assailant and held him until the police arrived. Berkman was tried and sent to the Western Penitentiary in Pittsburg for 21 years.

Thirteen days after the attack Frick walked to his office unattended and resumed the direction of the great strike which continued until Nov. 21 of that year. Frick was unmoved by the violence, the protests of the public or the distress of the families of the strikers. He won and never begrudged the price of victory.

When Frick entered the Carnegie Steel Co. he decided to make it the most powerful concern in the steel world. Two of his immediate ventures netted the Carnegie concern many millions of dollars without scarcely any investment.

Up to this time the switching charges between the various Carnegie plants had been very profitable to the railroads and expensive to the Carnegie company. Frick built the Union Railroad to weld the scattered Carnegie plants closer together. This eliminated the switching charges and saved enormous sums for the Carnegie company.

It was Frick who later took over a large portion of the Mesaba ore fields on Lake Superior in a big deal that guaranteed the Carnegie company for 50 years a minimum annual supply of 1,200,000 tons of ore, driving a shrewd bargain with the Rockefellers, who owned these ore lands.

Lost Millions to Carnegie.

Later Frick conceived the proposition of buying out Carnegie entirely, and in association with Henry Phipps, the second largest owner, of stocks, and with the co-operation of E. H. Moore and others, Frick asked Carnegie for an option on his interests. Carnegie demanded $1,000,000 for a 90-day option and named $157,950,000 in cash and bonds for his entire holding. This price, with the additional cost of the stock of the other partners in the Carnegie company, brought the cost of Frick's scheme close to $250,000,000. The matter was taken to J. P. Morgan, who was impressed with the idea. The plan collapsed, Frick's option expiring at a cost of a million dollars which Carnegie pocketed. This was the first failure Frick had ever known, but it was also a blow to Carnegie, for the failure of the Frick Syndicate left him in a position of having been on the market with his holdings which apparently could not be sold.

Carnegie became very bitter and tried to oust Frick entirely from the steel business. They developed a quarrel with many ramifications. Carnegie sought to have the board of managers declare Frick's stock forfeited at par value. Frick replied with a suit for an injunction to prevent this confiscation of his stock, but the case was finally settled out of court by the reorganization of the Carnegie company, which made several Pittsburgers millionaires over night. It made Frick one of the wealthiest men in the country, but it was disappointing to him later when Carnegie, with the aid of Charles M. Schwab, succeeded in interesting Morgan in the scheme he had previously rejected, and out of this interest came the financing of the United States Steel Corporation in 1901. By this again Frick's fortune was doubled. His $31,000,000 investment in the Carnegie company was turned into $61,300,000 in the United States Steel Corporation, although Carnegie had stolen his thunder. Schwab was made president of the Steel Corporation and Carnegie's representative in that concern.

Dethroned Charles M. Schwab.

In 1903 times became hard and United States Steel dropped to a low level. Frick then bought everything he could in the way of steel stock and when the excitement was over it was found he had acquired enough to be a power in that concern. His first move was to dethrone Schwab as president, but W. E. Corey, another Carnegie man, succeeded Schwab. Then Frick attacked Corey and succeeded in having him removed. James Farrell, Frick's friend, was finally made president of the great corporation.

The breach between Frick and Carnegie never fully healed. A small instance of it was seen in Pittsburg, where Carnegie built a large office building, naming it after himself, next door to which Frick built another building twice as large and named it after himself. Frick, incidentally, became one of the largest holders of real estate in Pittsburg. In New York Carnegie built a magnificent home and some time later Frick built an even more palatial residence on the site of the old Lenox Library between 70th and 71st streets on Fifth avenue.

Frick also maintained a beautiful summer home at Prides Crossing, Mass. He was one of the largest owners of Pennsylvania railroad stock, was one of that company's directors, and his dominating factor. He was also a power in Reading, Baltimore & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, and other railroads.

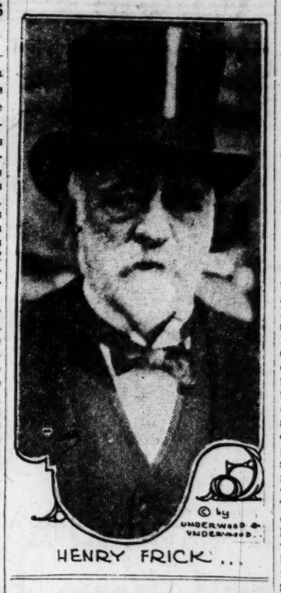

On Dec. 15, 1881, Frick was married to Miss Ada Howard Childes of Pittsburg. Four children were born to them; two boys and two girls. Mrs. Frick, one son and one daughter survive.

Berkman Learns of Death of Man He Tried to Kill.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, who attempted to assassinate Henry C. Frick at his office in Pittsburg, July 22, 1892, and was sentenced to a term of 21 years in the penitentiary for the crime, when informed of Frick's death today said: "It is too bad he cannot take the millions he amassed by exploiting labor with him."

Berkman is visiting in Chicago with Emma Goldman, both of whom have been ordered deported by the Government.

Victor output reaches normal

The shortage in Victrolas will soon be relieved

Plans for expanding the plant to meet the tremendous increase in demand have been fully matured and are under way—astonishing increases are assured within the next few months.

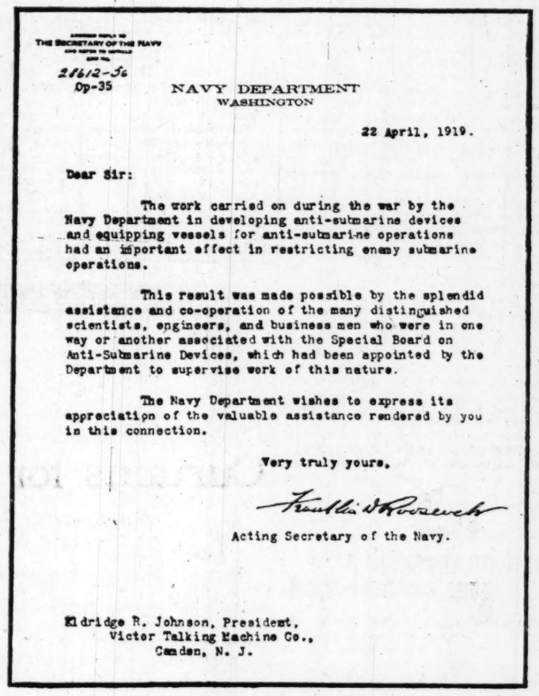

The value of the Victor Talking Machine Company's output for October was the greatest in its history. The unprecedented shortage of Victrolas will therefore soon be relieved.

During the war practically 90% of the $36,000,000 Victor investment was devoted to war work. This was responsible for the almost total disappearance of Victrolas from the market.

The armistice was signed in November, 1918, but it was not until March, 1919, that the Victor Company could clear its plant of war orders. And as it requires at least four months to manufacture Victrolas in the way the Victor Company manufactures them and in the way they should be manufactured, the rapidity of our recovery to normal output will be appreciated by all who know about manufacturing.

The Victor Company is the only talking machine company in the United States which has a complete plant for the manufacture of complete talking machines. All others are operated more or less by a system of contract construction—the fabricating system.

Years ago the Victor Company found it necessary to erect a large plant of its own in order to maintain its own standard of quality—VICTOR QUALITY.

NAVY DEPARTMENT
WASHINGTON

22 April, 1919.

Dear Sir:

The work carried on during the war by the Navy Department in developing anti-submarine devices and equipping vessels for anti-submarine operations had an important effect in restricting enemy submarine operations.

This result was made possible by the splendid assistance and co-operation of the many distinguished scientists, engineers, and business men who were in one way or another associated with the Special Board on Anti-Submarine Devices, which had been appointed by the Department to supervise work of this nature.

The Navy Department wishes to express its appreciation of the valuable assistance rendered by you in this connection.

Very truly yours,

Franklin D. Roosevelt

Acting Secretary of the Navy.

Eldridge R. Johnson, President,
Victor Talking Machine Co.,
Camden, N. J.

As this plant happened to be exactly what the Government required to produce bombing hydro-aeroplanes and other submarine detecting devices, the Victor plant was chosen for the place of honor and sacrifice, while our less fortunate or less competent competitors were ignored and allowed to continue.

This is the true story, the cause of the shortage in Victrolas, which our competitors have not been slow to take advantage of.

Many of our exclusive dealers stood by their convictions, while some have not and have put in competing lines which in many instances are inferior. This was their privilege, but we wish to point out that the advertisements which are appearing announcing several lines of "standard" talking machines are misleading.

There can never be several standards. The shortage of Victrolas and the lure of greater profits has induced the endorsement of inferior goods.

The Victor Company is the original manufacturer of the Victrola and holds all the original patents. In the last twenty-three years the Victor Company has originated all the startling improvements in the type of talking machine which it manufactures. Other manufacturers have simply followed, manufacturing instruments which are largely imitative.

The Victor Company is the only company in the United States fully equipped to make standard talking machines of the gramophone type—the Victrola is a gramophone not a phonograph.

There is only one standard talking machine and that is the VICTROLA.

There can be but one standard in any line, and the Victor Company produces the standard in talking machines.

NOTE—By reason of the above circumstances it is important that prospective customers visit a store where Victor goods are given fair presentation.

Victor Talking Machine Co., Camden, N. J.

GRAND-LEADER

At the Threshold of

The Christmas Season

We Pause a Moment in Consideration

IN the midst of the tumult and conflict of a world busy with its enormous task of reconstruction, we gratefully welcome a season which puts aside the crush of material affairs and unites the world in humble recognition of its great debt to its Creator and to its fellowmen.

Events of the years just past demonstrate "Man's Great Humanity to Man" and brought us to a realization of the great personal joys which come as a result of unselfish consideration of others. With these sensations still fresh upon us, we are entering upon another season of Christmas time. It rests with us to make it more nearly what its name typifies than has ever been done in years gone by.

With the simplicity and tremulous expectancy of little children, may we enter into the joys of the Christmas of 1919, and by contributing to the happiness of others may we each, in turn, gain much.

ROOFER GETS $1255 VERDICT TEN YEARS AFTER FILING SUIT

James L. Clarkson, 1421 North Euclid avenue, was awarded a judgment of $1255 by the St. Louis Court of Appeals today when that court affirmed the verdict of the Circuit Court in Clarkson's suit for $3500 against nine officers and members of Local No. 1 of the International Brotherhood of Composition Roofers, Damp and Waterproof Workers. The suit was started in 1909. Since that time three of the defendants have died.

Clarkson maintained that he had lost his job as a journeyman roofer with the St. Louis Roofing Co. because Patrick Garvey, business agent for the union told the company that a strike would be called unless all union workers out of employment were hired before Clarkson was given a place.

The officers and members of the union who were named defendants are: Frederick Laiblan, Eugene Moriarity, Micheal McCarthy, Micheal Shannon, Edward J. McCarthy, William Holstein, Ora Monday, Joseph P. Kelly and J. Hurley. The three defendants in the original suit who have died are Patrick Garvey, John Lyons and John F. Scarry.

BROTHER AND SISTER IN JAIL ON DIFFERENT CHARGES

He Is Held in Conection With Murder in Illinois and She Is Accused of Forgery.

Charles Redding, 29 years old, of 4569 St. Ferdinand avenue, and his sister, Miss Anna Redding, 28, of 1724 North Taylor avenue, were prisoners at police headquarters today. He is held for the Madison County (Ill.) authorities pending investigation of the killing of Peter J. Fleming, 4733 Hammett place, near Eagle Park, Ill., last week. His sister is held on a forgery charge. The two cases have no connection, policemen say.

Reading was arrested at 6 p. m. by detectives as a result of an anonymous letter to Chief O'Brien which related that Redding had been seen in an automobile with Fleming near Taylor and Easton avenues a short time before the murder. He knew Fleming but asserted he knew nothing of the killing. He also denied having seen Fleming or being with him on the night before Fleming was shot.

FEDERAL COURT ORDER STOPS SALE OF LIQUOR AT LOUISVILLE

Higher Tribunal Overrules Judge Evans' Decision, Under Which Distillers Operated Three Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 2.—After selling liquor for three weeks, unmolested by Federal authorities, who had been restrained from interference with sales, distillers here closed sales today following issuance of an order yesterday in the Federal Court of Appeals, Cincinnati, forbidding sale of liquor in this city by four distillers.

The order from the Cincinnati court, which technically overruled Judge Evans' decision and held the law was constitutional, does not provide that the local distillers shall be prosecuted for selling liquor since receiving the injunction from Judge Evans, but it was said that should the Federal Supreme Court hold the law constitutional these distillers would then be liable to prosecution.

PACKED HOUSE AT $10 A SEAT FOR 'APHRODITE'

Speculators Get as High as $100 a Pair for Play of Startling Effects.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—"Aphrodite," spectacular drama of ancient Egypt, with music and ballet features on an elaborate scale, was presented last night at the Century Theater after months of preparation. The play is replete with unusual scenes and startling effects, the Herald review says.

Dramatized from a French novel by Pierrre Louys, who describes his colorful epic as "a romance of manners in ancient Egypt," the play exhibits some customs, not to say costumes, which may well be described as redolent of the Isles of Spice. The powerful olden tale moves along through groups of dancing and posing girls, some few of whom are blessed with scarcely a stitch, as far as the naked eye could discern. There are scenes of vengeance and passion and one of the girl slaves is led out to die on a cross, the scene being one of the sensational ones.

Dorothy Dalton Leaves Movies.

Miss Dorothy Dalton, heretofore one of the popular stars of motion pictures, has the chief feminine role—that of Chrysis—a courtesan of renown, who is loved by a Greek sculptor, Demetrius (McKay Morris), who in turn is loved by the Egyptian Queen, played by Miss Hazel Alden.

Chrysis, a notorious profligate, at first treats the sculptor with contempt, but later pledges her love if he will commit three crimes for her—theft, murder and sacrilege—in order to obtain three things which she greatly desires—a mirror, a comb and a necklace. Demetrius works out his salvation through an idealized love for the goddess Aphrodite.

The play, in which there is a company of 300, with massive scenic effects, was dramatized from the novel in French by Pierre Frondale and the American version was made by George Hazleton. F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest are the producers, Gest having acquired the American rights while in Paris last spring.

A dancing feature that stands out among any seen here is the special ballet, which was arranged and directed by Michel Fokine, several years director of the Imperial Russion Ballet, who made his first journey to America to supervise the choregraphical part of "Aphrodite." He devoted especial attention to this ballet in which about 30 yound dancers appeared. It was a "Bacchanal," and was incidental to the second act. Lyall Swete was general stage director.

Production Ambitious.

The costumes, which were in part after the designs of Leon Bakst, were striking. Miss Dalton, a beautiful figure, being resplendant as were others. Percy Anderson of London designed many of the costumes. The music, by Henri Fevrier and Ansel Goetzel (who wrote the incidental music of the "Son-Daughter"), was played by an orchestra of 54 musicians. The play was absorbing and the production was one of the most ambitious that has yet appeared before the playgoers in this city.

There was tremendous interest in the premiere. Seats in the orchestra sold at $10 each, $11 with the war tax added. At this price the house was packed. Speculators were said to have demanded and received as high as $100 a pair.

The Fokine ballet proved its attractiveness in an unusual way. Just before the curtain rose on it an electric fuse had blown out somewhere above the balcony, making considerable smoke. A few persons started toward the exits and there were symptoms of a slight panic. When the curtain rose the spectacle "held them in their seats" and those who had been standing in indecision sat down to see the bare limbed dancers.

WOMAN SHOT BY JEALOUS HUSBAND DIES AT HOSPITAL

Mrs. Rose Mather, 27, Succumbs to Wounds Inflicted Oct. 27; Accused Man Is in Jail.

Mrs. Rose Mather, 27 years old, died in the Infection Hospital yesterday from bullet wounds inflicted by her husband, James, a laundryman, Oct. 27, over jealousy at Mrs. Mather having accompanied Fred Dasbach, a fellow boarder, to a picture show. Mather also shot Dasbach in the right leg.

The shooting occurred in the Leland Hotel, 1414 Market street, where the Mathers lived. After shooting her in the head in their room, Mather ran into the lobby, and began firing at Dasbach. Mrs. Mather said she had gone to a movie with Dasbach because her husband was absent, and she was lonesome. Mather is in jail, having been held by the Coroner today on a charge of homicide. He is a brother of a policeman.

CANAL ZONE AND COSTA RICA BAR RAILROAD LABOR LEADERS

Soldiers Stationed at Cristobal to Enforce Order Against Landing of Americans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—O. Howard Severs and Anthony Stair, railroad labor leaders who sailed Nov. 8 to look into grievances of 9000 organized employes on the Panama Canal, returned yesterday, having been prevented from landing at the Canal port of Cristobal by Gov. Chester Harding of the Canal Zone and afterward at Limon, Costa Rica by Provisional President Aguilar Barquers. They said no reason was given by the canal authorities for their being barred there.

The labor men had passports issued by the Department of State, which stated they were going to Panama on business and to Colombia for recreation. Severs is assistant to the president of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers and Stair is general organizer of the brotherhood. Both live in Trenton. Severs went to the Canal Zone last spring and organized the employes there then. He handled the Staten Island street car strike three years ago.

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK WINS PLAUDITS OF 6000

Queen of Song Warms Audience in Cold Coliseum With Generous Program and Encores.

BY W. H. JAMES.

MADAME ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK, who 41 years ago made her operatic debut in the exacting role of Azucena in "Il Trovatore" and since then has been a gorgeous jewel in the diadem of song, shone with the rare brilliance of a winter star in the unheated coliseum last night. Conservation of fuel there was, but no stinting of that luxury of sound which is beyond the pale of regional committees.

The program generosity of this great singer is proverbial. In vain the years have laid seige to her indomitable spirit. The snow has touched her hair, but with a caress; sorrow has dimmed her eyes, but tarried awhile to dry away the tears. Womanhood and motherhood have been her sword and buckler, ambition and art her handmaidens, and they have fended her valiantly and in a time of great stress, when allegiance might well have faltered, they have kept open her lines of communication to the public heart.

So here in the forty-first year of her reign as a queen of song she still holds benevolent sway, and there is none to question her title. Last night's audience of more than 6000 departed reluctantly after she had closed her long and varied program with an encore number that seemed all too short.

Indomitable Spirit There.

It is not for the lay critic to say whether madame's voice is as good as it ever was. The fact remains that it is still the best in the concert field. There were some traces of hoarseness in the opening songs and some signs of vocal fatigue in the later ones, but the singer's indomitable spirit was still there and, perhaps with more effort than in her younger days, and perhaps by sheer virtue of her personality, she achieved results which must be the despair of all her imitators.

The program, given under the auspices of the St. Louis Symphony Society and with the assistance of the Symphony Orchestra, was not heavily classic. The orchestra was heard in three numbers, Gluck's overture to "Iphegenia in Aulis," two movements from Tschaikowsky's Symphony in F minor and Chabrier's sprightly rhapsody, "Espana."

For all of her songs Mme. Schumann-Heink had as her accompanist Frank La Forge, a noted composer-pianist, who also played two solo numbers.

The song program included 13 numbers and there were three encore additions. At the outset, after singing in Italian an aria from Handel's Rinaldo, the singer by a comical shudder and "cuddling" folding of her arms plainly indicated that she was cold. This instantly put her in sympathetic touch with her hearers, most of whom retained their wraps.

Singer's Power Asserts Itself.

Bach's "My Heart Ever Faithful," sung in English, and a Rossi aria in Italian, were well received, but the singer's great power did not begin to assert itself until she reached the climax of La Forge's arrangement of the Princess Wrede's "Before the Crucifix." The power displayed here, as in many of the succeeding numbers, was partly vocal and partly dramatic, for Mme. Schumann-Heink's dramatic emotionalism is an asset second in value only to her golden voice. In the La Forge chaplet of songs were "Expectancy," "Retreat," "To a Messenger" and "Flanders Requiem."

"To a Messenger," though only a fragment of eight lines, captivated the audience. Sang madame:

"When you see my mistress, dear,
Say I love her dearly.
If she asks you how I fare,
Say I fare but fairly.
Should she ask if I am ill,
Say I die of sorrow.
If she then begin to cry,
Say I'll come tomorrow."

Interprets Indian Song.

Ross' "Dawn in the Desert," one of Madame's favorite numbers, was given in impressive style and this led up to a number which fairly banished all thought of frigidity. In her interpretation of Lieurance's "Indian Love Song," she pitched her remarkable voice and no less remarkable acting powers to keys of artistry not touched at any other period in her performance.

The Indian maiden sings to the moon:

Moon, dear, how near
Your soul divine;
Sun, dear, no fear
In heart of mine.
Skies blue, o'er you
Look down in love,
Waves bright give light
As on they move.
Hear thou my vow
To live, to die
Moon dear, thee near
Beneath thy sky.

Rare Combination in Song.

Here were a soft and beautiful melody, simple, but eloquent words, wonderful notes sustained by the softest of vocal caresses, and all within the range of the best that remains of the world's best contralto voice. It was a rare combination and it called for repetition and, behold, the seemingly impossible came to pass, for madame's second rendition was better than the initial effort. Only once more did she rise to such a height. This was in the singing of Pasternack's "Taps," a simple setting of words to the plaintive bugle call which summons the soldier to his rest, temporary or eternal, as the fortunes of war may decide.

Carpenter's "The Home Road," Ward-Stephens' "Have You Seen Him in France?", and Rogers' stirring martial song, "When Pershing's Men Go Marching Into Picardy," were given with fine spirit, though in the case of the last number, at least, with evidences of tiring effort, which after all may have been a part of the singer's dramatic effect, for no doubt Pershing's men were as tired when they finished their march into Picardy as was the madame when she completed her unusually generous and demandful cycle of songs.

FATHER DEMPSEY BUYS OPTION ON HIS WORKING GIRLS' HOTEL

Says He Will Spend $10,000 Improving Structure at 1421 Hogan Street.

The Rev. Father Timothy Dempsey announced today that he had obtained an option on the three-story building at 1421 Hogan avenue, formerly used by the St. Vincent Orphan Asylum, at which he is now conducting a working girls' hotel.

He expects to purchase the building in the near future and will spend $10,000 for repairs. Several months will be needed to make the repairs. He said the building would contain 77 rooms and would accommodate between 150 and 200 girls.

The hotel will be conducted as at present. It will be a place where a working girl can obtain adequate lodging at a price the management thinks her employment justifies. There are few rules and regulations and no social welfare work, in the usual sense of the word, is attempted.

SOLDIER REPORTING HOLDUP IDENTIFIES PAIR IN STATION

"There They Are," He Cries When He Sees Two Men Being Booked: Lost $101.

When Carl Kaiser, a discharged soldier, of Racine, Wis., walked into the Wyoming Street Police Station at 12:10 a. m. today to report being held up and robbed by two men who took $101 and his discharge papers half an hour before, he saw two prisoners at the rail being booked as "pick ups."

"There they are now!" he exclaimed to the patrolman accompanying him. "They're the two that took my money."

The men referred to gave their names as George Erbs, 29, a teamster, of 2515 DeKalb stret, and Sylvester Romacker, 24, of 2118 South Seventh street. They had been arrested on suspicion near Broadway and Duchouquette street at midnight, while, they claimed, they were on their way to their homes. They denied being implicated in the holdup, but on Kaiser's positive assertions they were held. Kaiser came to St. Louis yesterday seeking work. Near Broadway and Russell avenue, he said, he had asked two men where he could find a room. These men, he said, had offered to guide him to a place and after walking a block had held him up and robbed him. None of the money or the papers he lost was found on the two prisoners.

LEGION ORGANIZER REFUTES STATEMENTS OF HIS CRITICS

John S. Seibert Submits Proof That Adjutant-General Clark Authorized His Activity.

John S. Seibert, who organized several of the St. Louis posts of the American Legion, has submitted to the Post-Dispatch certain documents as refutation of a statement attributed to St. Louis post commanders, after a meeting early last month, that Seibert had styled himself "organizing secretary of Missouri," without authority. In a news account of this fact it was stated that Seibert was an "honorary" member of Quentin Roosevelt Post.

One of Seibert's documents was a letter signed by Harvey C. Clark, Adjutant-General, who directed the organization of the legion in Missouri, in which Clark asked that Seibert act as organizing secretary in Missouri. He also exhibited a letter of Henry D. Lindsay, then national chairman of the legion, addressed to him and summoning him to a meeting of the national Executive Committee in Minneapolis. He further showed papers establishing that he served as a private in the war, attached to the medical corps at Jefferson Barracks, together with his discharge. For this reason he said he was a regular, not honorary, member of the legion.

Seibert for several months maintained an office of the legion at 1214 Olive street, which now is closed.

MAN DIES AS RESULT OF FALL

Charles Juerdan, 56 years old, of 2610 North Twenty-first street, died at his home at noon yesterday from injuries suffered Sunday night, when he fell from the third-story window of his home to the brick pavement, a distance of 30 feet.

He was found unconscious at 10 p. m. Sunday lying beneath the window. Investigation disclosed he had tried to open the window, when seized with a fainting spell, and in leaning on the sill it had given way, precipitating him to the ground.

PLAN TO RECLAIM 22 ACRES

Plans to reclaim 22 acres of land for the city's use, through the extending of the city harbor line, south of the free bridge, have been presented to the ways and means committee of the Board of Aldermen by Director Hooke of the department of Public Utilities, who estimates the cost at $175,000. The improvement is planned to extend to President street, 3600 south.

The Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers' Association favor the plan, which will permit new trackage on the river front.

BABY BURNS TO DEATH IN CRIB

Louis J. Kick, driver of a service car, residing at 6107A Horton place, returned to his home at 12:20 a. m. today for lunch and found the place filled with smoke. After firing three shots from a revolver to attract neighbors, he rushed into the house and found his 10-months-old son, John, burned to death in his crib in a rear room.

Policemen, after investigation, reported the baby had been left alone in the house while the mother went across the street to a restaurant to buy material for the midnight meal. Before going she had lighted a coal oil stove and placed it near the baby's crib to keep it warm. In her absence the flames had set fire to the bedding.

The fire was extinguished before the arrival of the department.

NEW YORK SONG HIT

The latest New York sensational ballad, PRETTY LITTLE RAINBOW, is at present quite a fad in the East. The song possesses a simple waltz refrain with a beautiful melody which impresses you immediately, and from all indications will be the most popular hit this country has ever known. Following is a portion of the chorus:

Pretty Little Rainbow

Although the song has been published a short time, thousands of copies have been sold. There is a slight advance over the popular music. This can be had for phonograph and player-pianos.

G. O. P. PICKS MAN TO RUN AGAINST CLARK

T. W. Hukriede of Warrenton Selected to Make Race for Congress in Ninth District.

Republicans active in State politics and in the State Republican organization, after conferences covering a period of several weeks, have picked T. W. Hukriede of Warrenton, former chairman of the State committee, as the Republican organization candidate for Congress in the Ninth district, Champ Clark's district, which they have determined to make an unusually hard fight to carry in 1920.

The district, comprising nine counties north, west and southwest of St. Louis, has long been fighting ground politically except in the case of Clark, who with the exception of the election of 1894 has carried it without much of an effort every election since 1892. It contains a larger number of Germans than any district in the State with the possible exception of the Tenth in St. Louis.

Clark many years ago began to win these German voters and while on other offices they voted the Republican ticket Clark generally received their support. He lost it in 1894 when in an unguarded moment in a speech in St. Charles he referred to German Republicans as "flop-eared Dutch."

Clark Won by 1529.

In 1916 the Republicans succeeded in carrying five of the 16 congressional districts in Missouri and lost several others by less than 100 votes. Clark won by 1529, which was about 500 less than his majority in 1916.

In considering plans for the 1920 campaign the Republican State organization has given particular attention to the congressional districts. At Republican State headquarters the opinion that the Ninth district can be carried by a Republican is confidently expressed.

In most of the districts which the Republicans lost by narrow margins it is probable the candidates who were beaten in 1918 will be renominated, but in Clark's district the attention of the organization has been given to the selection of a candidate it believes can poll virtually the entire German vote of the district. It has selected Hukriede of Warren County, which, though a small county, has a very large number of German voters.

Hukriede has canvassed the district many times and has an intimate acquaintance throughout the district. When chairman of the State committee he was in close touch with all the political workers in the district and has been picked as the strongest possible candidate in such a district as the Ninth.

Race for Congress Expected.

The leaders are proceeding on the theory that Clark will be the Democratic nominee. They do not believe he will again be a candidate for President and are confident that rather than make a State campaign for Senator he will again ask to be returned to Congress.

The uncertainty of political conditions in the district is indicated by the fact that in 1916, when Clark carried it by 2051, Lamm, the Republican nominee for Governor, carried it by 318, and Reed, the Democratic nominee for Senator, carried it by 237. In 1918, when Clark carried it by 1529, Spencer, the Republican candidate for Senator, carried it by 2854; Baker, the Republican candidate for Superintendent of Schools, carried it by 379, and Neville, the Republican candidate for Supreme Judge, carried it by 319.

VILLA REPORTED KILLING 674 TO AVENGE ANGELES' DEATH

Bandit Chieftain Nearly Wipes Out Force That Boasted It Would "Get" Him.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 2.—Gen. Santo Sanchez, Commander of the Eighteenth Regiment of Mexican Federal troops, is still reported missing and is believed to have been killed with 673 men of his command of 675 with whom he had boasted that he would "get" Francisco Villa, when that bandit chieftain with 1000 followers, in revenge for the execution of Gen. Felipe Angeles, swooped down on the Federals at Rancho Espodo and massacred them. Only two officers escaped Villa's vengeance, according to the report brought here by Dr. L. M. Gomez of El Paso and Los Angeles, former American army aviator. He said he overheard the two officers, Col. Rivas and Lieutenant-Colonel Marroqui, relate the story of the annihilation of the Federal command to a mutual friend in Santa Rosalio.

Clubbed rifles and knives accounted for most of the command, according to the story, after 150 Federals fell at the first surprise volley. Many others were shot down as they fled. The Villistas fought with the fury of madmen, the officers who escaped said. The attack began at 6 o'clock in the morning, about 24 hours after Angeles was executed.

MAN DROWNS, PINNED UNDER TRUCK IN CREEK

Car Overturned in Effort to Avoid Speeding Auto on Bridge in County.

The shallow water of a creek near Fenton, St. Louis County, drowned August Mraz, 20, of Fenton, when he was plunged into the creek under an overturned automobile truck at 6:30 last evening.

Mraz was riding with John Schlecht, a farmer, who was driving the truck, and Edward Nolan was another passenger. All were on the front seat.

As the truck came to the culvert over the creek, three-fourths of a mile west of Fenton, the driver saw an automobile coming upon the culvert at full speed in the opposite direction. He turned, to avoid a collision, and the truck went over the embankment and overturned.

Schlecht jumped in time to escape being caught under the machine, as it overturned. Mraz and Nolan were caught, Nolan in such a manner that he was able to keep his head above water, but Mraz in a position where he could not move his head or arms. After trying for several minutes to move the truck sufficiently to release the men, Schlecht ran for help. Neighboring farmers righted the truck. It was found that Mraz had drowned in 10 inches of water. Nolan was taken to his home near Fenton. The fatality is considered due to the recklessness of the driver whose car met the truck at the culvert. This machine ran on after the accident.

"A DRINK NOT A DRINK IF IT IS DRUNK WITH MEALS"

New Yorker Says When Liquor Is Taken for Alimentary Purposes It Is Not Used as Beverage.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—"When is a drink not a drink?" Another conundrum bred of prohibition was sprung in Supreme Court here yesterday. The answer is "when it is taken at meals for food or alimentary purposes at home, hotels and restaurants."

This contention was made by counsel for Howard Major of this city, a stockholder in the American Malt & Grain Co., a $13,000,000 concern, in a suit brought against erstwhile directors, combating their action in selling out at a loss to another corporation. The plaintiffs asserted that if they had obtained "competent legal advice" they would have "known" that the words "beverage purposes" in the Federal prohibition amendment did not mean "total prohibition."

Major's counsel declared that "by legal, economic and philological definition, 'beverage purposes' as used in said amendment means drinking between meals, for tippling purposes and for pleasure only, as at bars and in saloons," and that restaurants will "in a very short time be enabled to sell liquor." Justice Lazansky remarked that if the definition of the term "beverage purposes" must be gone into, he desired time to do it and asked for briefs.

BOY LIES ALL DAY IN WEED PATCH AFTER BEING SHOT

Was Wounded by Policeman Who Had Arrested Him and From Whom He Was Fleeing.

Henry Wurlitz, 16 years old, of 4111 Clayton avenue, suspected of having stolen some candy and cigarettes, was shot and seriously wounded at 9 a. m. yesterday, as he was running through Tower Grove Park to escape from a policeman. He continued running, however, and lay all day in a weed patch at King's highway and Accomac street. When he emerged last night, half delirious, the same policeman caught him.

Two other boys implicated Henry in the robbery of a store at 4054 Manchester avenue, and Policeman Gerard Cleary of the Magnolia Avenue District went to the shoe factory where Henry is employed and arrested him. As they alighted from a street car in front of the Magnolia Avenue Station the boy tripped Cleary and ran. The policeman fired four shots. The first three were in the air, he said.

It was said at the city hospital last night that one bullet had penetrated the boy's back below the right shoulder, and that, due to lack of immediate attention, his condition was serious.

SECOND JUDGMENT AFFIRMED AGAINST THE UNION ELECTRIC

Verdict Is in Favor of Mother of Boy Disabled Four Years Ago by Live Wire.

A second judgment, this time for $9500, was affirmed yesterday in the Supreme Court against the Union Electric Light and Power Co. on account of injuries suffered by Prosper H. Meeker, 19 years old, 6115 Southwest avenue, who came in contact with a broken electric light wire four years ago and was so badly burned as to disable him for life.

The judgment yesterday was in favor of his mother for expenses incurred by her on account of the injury to her son and for loss of his services. Recently the company satisfied a judgment for approximately $44,000, including interest, in favor of the boy.

I. W. W.'s Keep Up Hunger Strike.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 2.—With one of their number in the city hospital with a high fever, the 21 alleged I. W. W. hunger strikers in the city jail spent the fifth day of their fast yesterday. They gave no indication their strike is near at end. Their jailers said the men are standing their fast in good shape and it is believed the striker sent to the hospital was ill when he was sent to jail.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—An American-born woman, the first of her sex to have the honor, attained full membership yesterday in the British House of Commons and at the evening session cast her initial ballot on a question before the House. The woman is Lady Astor, wife of Viscount Astor, who was Nancy Langhorne, a famous beauty from the State of Virginia. David Lloyd George, Prime Minister, and Arthur J. Balfour, Lord President of the Council, acted as sponsors for Westminster's first woman legislator to take her seat.

When Lady Astor moved down the aisle with Lloyd George and Balfour following, there was a roar of "Hear! Hear!" and applause from the men who packed the benches on both sides. Lady Astor carried with her the certificate of the election officers, which she presented to the clerk.

Soon afterward the new member reappeared and listened to Horatio W. Bottomley speaking on the premium bond measure before the House. Then she perused a number of messages brought to her by attendants and stuffed them into her coat pockets. After a few minutes she rose, made the customary bow to the Speaker and withdrew.

JUDGE THREATENS TO DISMISS OLD CASES WITH SCOOP SHOVEL

Judge Faris in the United States District Court today threatened to use "scoop shovel methods" in dismissing long-delayed cases, some of which, he said, had been on the court docket 10 or 12 years. When he called the law docket today to hear motions and fix trial dates, several continuances were asked. After granting some of these the Judge said:

"This docket is badly congested. There are some cases that have been here 10 or 12 years and nothing has been done with them. There is no reason for delay in a number of these cases. I must warn you that some of these cases must be tried and the docket must be straightened out, or I will begin dismissing them with a scoop shovel."

There are more than 200 cases now on the docket in Judge Faris' court.

ESTATE OF HENRIETTA BROWN

An inventory of the estate of Miss Henrietta Brown, 84 years old, who died Oct. 30 at St. Luke's Hospital, was filed yesterday. It shows personal property valued at $98,496.41.

Miss Brown lived at 3817 Washington avenue and was buried on her ancestral farm south of Eureka, Mo. Her will provided that $15,000 of her estate be held in trust, from which her friend, Miss Anna M. Buch, is to receive $50 a month. She also left $4000 to be used for a new Methodist Church building at Eureka and gave the residue of her property to her two nieces, Mrs. Arthur D. Mosher and Mrs. Jeremiah Murphy of New York, and a grandniece, Miss Celeste Brown, of this city, in equal parts.

WOMAN BEQUEATHS $1 TO EACH CHILD OF SON WHO LEFT HER $1

Will of Mrs. Jane M. Fisher Disposes of Estate Valued at $60,000.

The will of Mrs. Jane M. Fisher, disposing of an estate estimated at $60,000, was filed yesterday. She had bequeathed $25,000 and her home at 3518 Shenandoah avenue to her daughter, Rose M. Fisher, but as the latter died before her mother, this bequest is void.

Others named in the will as principal beneficiaries are her daughter, Mrs. Leonard A. Fassett, 5833 Plymouth avenue, and a son, James E. Fisher, 3417A Magnolia avenue. Children of a deceased son, Guy K. Fisher, a jeweler, are left one dollar each.

Several years ago Mrs. Fisher and her children filed a suit to set aside the will of her son, Guy, who had a jewelry business in the Victoria building. The bulk of Fisher's estate, estimated at $100,000, was left by him to his wife, Mrs. Millie Fisher. His mother and the other members of her family were left one dollar each. She alleged that she did not know of her son's marriage until after his death. Previous to the will contest Guy Fisher's widow had filed suit against his mother for $50,000 damages, alleging slander. The litigation later was settled.

Interallied Mission Told to Try to Get Gen. Yudenitch in Favor.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The members of the interallied mission in the Baltic are to be instructed by the Supreme Council to make an effort to persuade the Esthonian Government to adopt a more conciliatory attitude toward the army of Gen. The council decided upon this action upon receiving a report on this subject from Marshal Foch, the allied Commander in Chief.

Their Daughter in Cleveland—and BlueBird

He happened to be at home when the letter arrived from their married daughter in Cleveland.

It told of BlueBird, and really clean clothes. It spoke of a whole week's washing finished in an hour, at the cost of a few cents and the minimum of personal effort.

He had on several occasions helped with the washing and the wringing, and knew just what washday meant to his wife. He wanted to make it it as easy for her as possible.

They left their home on Harris Avenue immediately. They went to look at a BlueBird at the down town store.

■ ■ ■

He found the mechanism of BlueBird strong, simple, easy to care for. The machinery was encased; the motor would need oiling only once in six months. The white cabinet meant added strength to the machine and protection to the user.

She found the large copper tub smooth inside. She knew that it would be easy to keep clean. The absence of pegs, slats, holes or projections meant that the clothes would not be torn or worn. She saw a tubful of soiled clothes whirled back and forth in the hot soapy water and come out in less than fifteen minutes, thoroughly clean.

■ ■ ■

They bought BlueBird. They paid a few dollars, and arranged to pay the rest in convenient monthly payments.

We will be glad to give you their name and address when you call at 303 North Seventh Street — The BlueBird Home—to see a BlueBird demonstration.

"CHU CHIN CHOW" IS GORGEOUS SPECTACLE

Famous "Arabian Nights" Extravaganza Enraptures Big and Brilliant Audience.

BY RICHARD L. STOKES.

RAPTURES of color and sound, ecstasies of youth and beauty, and, since man is so constituted as to find esthetic joy in evil, transports of grossness and monstrosity—these are the pagan beatitudes of the senses which burn with a devouring flame throughout that stupendous embodiment of romance, "Chu Chin Chow," which opened a season of two weeks last night at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater before one of the largest and most brilliant audiences ever assembled in a St. Louis playhouse.

The panorama is unfolded in the city which the imagination has most glamoured with dreams of passion and luxuriance, the opulent Baghdad of Haroun-al-Raschid. We are in the palace of Kasim Baba, richest and most miserly of merchants, a thousand years ago. Bestriding the scene like a colossus is the giant Chinese mandarin, Chu Chin Chow, in a robe blazing with embroidered dragons, with his malign and inhuman visage, and silvered talons like those of a bird of prey at the tips of his fingers. We learn that Chu Chin Chow is actually Abu Hassan, deadliest of robbers and chief of the terrible Forty Thieves of the Arabian Nights. He has been drawn hither by the tigerish desert-woman, his secret accomplice, Zahrat-al-Kalub, for the plundering of Kasim Baba.

Next came one of those exquisite lyric interludes which seem to be an artistic invention of the creator of "Chu Chin Chow." With the effect of a dissolving view of a stereopticon, an aperture opened in the curtain, and there brightened into sight a balcony with a barred window, beneath which, in the tropical night, a bare-limbed youth sang his love to a beauteous slave girl who leaned down to listen and blended her rapturous voice with his. These melodious insets recurred throughout the play, sometimes advancing the action, sometimes bringing it to a pause, as an opera comes to a beautiful halt that an aria may be sung.

Robbers' Cave Discovered.

The third scene discloses a sinister cactus grove outside the city, in the midst of which the joyous drunkard, Ali Baba, is fuddling himself at the wine-cup. It is precisely to the blithsome tippler that there is revealed the secret of the thieves' cave; to the riotous idler it is given to enjoy the harvest which the industrious robber chieftain has so laboriously and perilously reaped. Another radiant miniature shows the entrance to the grotto of treasures.

The first act ends with a resplendent scene in the slave market of Baghdad; and the ends of the earth have been ransacked to provide for the epicures of the Orient the loveliest and most monstrous of women. There are slant-eyed girls from Japan, girls of undulating gait from India, Pink-eyed albinos, with bushes of snowy wool for hair, buxom negresses from Ethopia, and serpentine odalisques from Georgia and Circassia. The false Chu Chin Chou unmasks himself, and, with his 40 thieves, falls upon the merchants and seizes their heavy purses.

The first scene of the second act displays a mean street in Baghdad, the residence of Ali Baba. The mud huts are blazing under the white-hot sunlight, and before them passes a motley parade of characters and animals. On the roof of Ali Baba's house a half-witted negress, with rolling eyes, eats a banana; a giant and idiotic negro, passing beneath, breaks forth at sight of her into apelike paroxysms and mouthings of joy. The rollicking Ali Baba enters with a heavily-laden donkey; but he gets a cudgelling from his termagant wife before he has time to fling a shower of gold from the donkey's panniers into the noisome street.

Array of Munificent Fabrics.

There follows one of the most beautiful of the small scenes. Ali Baba has had the wish to bedeck himself worthily of his new-found wealth, and is seated in a silk stall. The faithful wine cup is in his hand, and with him are his son, Nur-al-Huda, the youth of the balcony, and his love, the singing slave girl, Marjanah. While Ala Baba cracks his bibulous jests, a negress in scarlet drapes about him one gorgeous cloth after another—azure, orange, emerald, crimson—until the whole scene is incandescent with color. The fabrics are so rich that even the dull sense of touch is kindled at beholding the fingers of the actors stroke them.

The Blue Hall in Kasim's palace is next revealed, with its fulginous pillars of sapphire thronging away into the distance, its dusky blue hangings, its great chandeliers of cloudy azure. For the entertainment of the miser and his chief wife there troops forth a ballet of girls, in applause of whose postures in the indigo gloom the voluptuous dotard slavers and gibbers with hideous senility. The dance is succeeded by a pantomine—an oasis of humor in the show—in which a beautiful youth is beloved by an elderly wife, and both are poisoned by a grotesque husband. This tiny bit is invested with the last artistic detail of costume.

The Death of Kasim Baba.

Soon afterwards we are in the robber's cave, with its heaps of diamonds, rubies, pearls, emeralds and precious metals glittering in the dusk. There enters Kasi Baba, who has extorted from his garrulous brother the secret of the grotto, and who falls into obscene convulsions of avarice at sight of the treasures. Then the spirits of the gems, who have lain unseen upon the piles of wealth, spring up and dance about him. A noise is heard. The robbers are coming. Kasim tries to shout "Open sesame" to the charmed door so that he may escape, but he has forgotten the incantation. In a moment the frightful Abu Hassan is upon him; the robbers play with their victim like a band of cats with a mouse; Kasim grovels bleating in loathsome paroxysms of terror; and at the end the laughing bandit chief hauls him up with one hand and with the other slices him in four as one would carve a fowl.

By this time there had unrolled before the vision such a crowd of colors and forms that the sense would be fancied too sated for further emotions. But the most opulent scene of all was to come at the beginning of the third act—a fashion bazaar in Baghdad. Ali Baba's wife, now in all the splendor of a palanquin and a retinue of swart lackeys, wishes some new gowns, and before her is paraded a symphony of oriental attire.

A Fanfare of Color.

With this scene the orchestration of dazzling hues attains an overwhelming fanfare. In vertiginous swiftness one costume after another appears, until the brain is giddy and the eye deafened with color. Scarlet thunders against yellow, blue crashes against green; there are flaunting plumes from birds and skins from animals; there are headdresses of monstrous gods from savage pantheons, and through all the orgy of effulgent color and bizarre form there flashes the gleam of snowy breasts, the sheen of alabaster thighs.

After this supreme display, the spectacle hastens to its conclusion. As in the old tale, Abu Hassan's thieves are smuggled into Ali Baba's garden in huge oil jars. Negro slaves with flagons of boiling oil enter, and pour the steaming liquid into the pots. To a chorus of awful groans, there is wafted from the stage a pungent odor which one might take for that of sizzling flesh. A moment later, and Abu Hassan meets his doom—a knife-thrust from Zahrat-al-Kulub, who has found reasons enough during the play for vengeance upon her former master.

Such is the famous extravaganza created four years ago in London by the eminent actor-manager and producer, Oscar Asche, which now reaches St. Louis for the first time, with costumes duplicating those of the second London edition. It is accompanied by able music from the pen of Frederick Norton. One of the songs, "We Are the Robbers of the Wood," has become familiar wherever phonographs and orchestras play; it was interesting to hear how cleverly it modulated to minor when the thieves were stewing in the jars of oil. Almost equally popular is the cobbler's song at the beginning of the bazar scene.

The company is that of the Century Theater production in New York. It is headed by the gigantic Lionel Braham, seen here before as the brutish sea captain in "The Wanderer," and by Marjorie Wood, who have the parts of Chu Chin Chow and of the desert woman, Zahrat-al-Kulub. Braham's enormous physique, his many-fathom voice, his gifts of facial expression and powerful acting make the part of the robber sheik an unforgettable one. As for Miss Wood, all that is remarked that when it is remarked that impassioned emotional character and the savage woman could possibly have been given by her predecessor in the role, Florence Reed herself.

The singing parts are all admirably cast—Helen Gunther, her charming lyric soprano, a slave girl; Eugene Cowles, one of the most popular of American barytones as the steward Abdullah; Geoseley, tenor, as the son of Ali Baba; and Felice de Gregorio, as the cobbler. Don W. Ferrendou made Ali Baba a most engaging blackguard and Albert Howson's Kasim the miser, was a triumph of loathsomeness. There are some twenty other able cast, besides dancers, girls, models, thieves, vagabonds, merchants, etc., who, with the musical force, run up the pen of the production to a total approach 300.

CITY COUNSELLOR WILL SEEK PRE-WAR STRENGTH OF GAS

Says He Will Ask Public Service Commission to Restore Peace Time Standard.

City Counsellor Daues today, after being questioned by a Post-Dispatch reporter, said he would file a petition with the State Public Service Commission for an order restoring the pre-war strength of gas. Before the war the required strength was 601 British thermal units per cubic foot. In October, 1915, an order was issued authorizing the reduction of the strength to 570 units as a war measure, so that the Government might obtain toluil, a by-product of gas manufacture, for use in making explosives.

Daues said the question of asking for restoration of pre-war strength had been discussed in his office and the conclusion had been reached that the public necessity for reduced strength had ceased. However, no action has been taken.

Consumers have been complaining about the quality of the gas being furnished by the Laclede Gas Co.

When inquiry was made at Jefferson City Chairman Busby of the commission said the strength of the gas has not been ordered restored because neither the city, the company, the Government nor any individual consumer or interested party had requested it.

This Would Not Have Happened Had We Been Appointed Trustee

We learned of a case recently where two individuals were appointed trustees of an estate. After a period of years they asked to be relieved of their duties.

Another individual was then appointed. He served until his death.

A fourth individual succeeded him and there may be others before the trust terminates.

Naturally the estate has not been handled as efficiently or economically as it would have been had a Trust Company been named in the will. None realize this better than the beneficiaries under the trust.

Instruct your attorney in drawing up your will to name the St. Louis Union Trust Co. as Trustee. This will insure continuous management of your estate by a skilled, experienced and permanent organization.

Our officers will be glad to discuss this with you further.

Mrs. Julia Plank, 25 years old, 1911 South Eleventh street, was severely burned about the face, arms and body this morning when she poured kerosene on a slowly burning wood fire. DON'T worry all winter about your radiator freezing. Use Johnson's Freeze-Proof—then forget there is such a thing as a frozen radiator. Johnson's Freeze-Proof does not evaporate, so one application lasts all winter.

JOHNSON'S FREEZE-PROOF

is easy to use—is non-inflammable—inexpensive and guaranteed. It raises the boiling point of water 20° to 40°.

Read This Guarantee!

We guarantee that Johnson's Freeze-Proof has no more effect than water on the metals of the radiator or on rubber.

If Johnson's Freeze-Proof is used according to the simple directions in the proportion shown on our scale, it will absolutely protect your radiator against damage from freezing.

We do not guarantee Johnson's Freeze-Proof when used in cars with aluminum manifolds, although it has been used satisfactorily in hundreds of them. Water alone often has an injurious effect on aluminum.

Johnson's Freeze-Proof will give perfect satisfaction if used according to the directions on the label. It requires just a little time and care to comply with these instructions—then your worry is over for the whole winter.

1st—Clean all dirt, scale, sediment, etc., from the cooling system by using a boiling solution of ordinary washing soda. Flush out thoroughly.

2nd—Repair all leaks. Unless hose connections are new, replace them. Tighten all packing and gaskets.

$1.50 Protects a Ford

One package of Johnson's Freeze-Proof (cost $1.50) will protect a Ford to 5° below zero, and two packages to 50° below zero. For larger radiators, or to protect to a lower temperature, use additional Freeze-Proof according to the scale on the package.

ST. LOUISANS TO GO ON G. O. P. QUEST SATURDAY

Delegation of 45 Will Be Opposed in Washington by 200 Chicago Convention Seekers.

A St. Louis delegation of 25 Republicans, augmented by 20 or more delegates to the Mississippi Valley Association meeting, will depart at noon Saturday over the Pennsylvania Railroad for Washington to present to the Republican National Committee at its meeting there Dec. 10 St. Louis' arguments why the 1920 Republican National Convention should be held in St. Louis.

The following day three delegations numbering more than 200 persons will go from Chicago to urge the claims of that city for the convention. According to dispatches from Chicago that city has arranged for a dozen or more members of the National Committee to accompany one of the Chicago delegations in a private car from Chicago to Washington.

Plenty of Entertainment.

It is understod the car will be plentifully supplied with entertainment for the guests. At least it will afford the Chicago delegation an opportunity to get in plenty of campaigning before the committee meets.

According to Fred Upham, treasurer of the Republican National Committee and head of one of the delegations, the national committeemen who will accompany him and his delegation are William H. Crocker of California, John W. Hart of Idaho, Fred Stanley of Kansas, Patrick Sullivan of Wyoming, James J. McGraw of Oklahoma, Alfred T. Rogers of Wisconsin, Hubert Work of Colorado, John T. Adams of Iowa, Thomas A. Marlow of Montana, R. B. Howell of Nebraska, Willis C. Cook of South Dakota and Ralph E. Williams of Oregon.

The St. Louis delegation will carry a certified check for $40,000 as a guarantee for the convention expenses, and will present to the National Committee the argument that St. Louis has a convention hall equal to any in the country, that it has ample hotel accomodations at reasonable rates, that Chicago hotel rates during conventions always have been exhoritant, that it would be unfair to other candidates for President than Gov. Lowden to hold the convention in Chicago, Lowden's home city, where the galleries could be packed with Lowden shouters, and that the American Legion at its first national meeting in St. Louis refused to go to Chicago for its national convention because of the record during the war of Mayor William Hale Thompson.

Chicago to Offer $150,000.

The Chicago delegations, one of which will go in a special tran, and the others in special cars, will carry along a certified check for $150,000, and will contend that it has a larger coliseum and more hotels than St. Louis. It will answer the St. Louis contention of unfairness to other candidates by setting out that St. Louis is just across the Mississippi River from Illinois and that it would be as easy to pack a convention in St. Louis for Lowden as it would in Chicago.

St. Louis, however, will meet this with the explanation that Chicago, in return for its $150,000 donation, will ask for at least half of the convention tickets, most of which would be distributed to Lowden boosters, while St. Louis will ask no tickets, but will leave all tickets in the hands of the National Committee to distribute as it pleases.

"The Chicago delegations are contending that although the Chicago coliseum seated only 8700 persons when Roosevelt was nominated in 1904, and 12,200 when Hughes was nominated in 1916, it will be arranged next year to seat 13,400. The St. Louis coliseum was arranged at the 1916 Democratic convention to seat 12,430 and members of the St. Louis committee say a slight rearrangement will add several hundred seats.

Upham still is contending that 34 of the 52 members of the committee have promised to vote for Chicago, but the accuracy of Upham's figures are disputed by Jacob L. Babler, Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, who says he has received letters from more than a dozen committeemen claimed by Upham, who say they have made no promise, and will give the St. Louis proposition every consideration.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Jenkins Case and Prager Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The Jenkins case smells to high heaven. Is the Post-Dispatch and the rest of the American press to silently permit the petroleum interests of this country to use our State Department, our army and our navy in forcing the Mexican people to revoke a clause in their Constitution?

The Jenkins case is too thin. Anybody who has followed the circumstances of this latest controversy with Mexico knows that it is the new constitutional provision which vests Mexican oil rights in the Mexican Government which is at the root of the trouble, and not the mistreatment of Jenkins or anybody else.

No more fair or logical paper has been evolved in the history of diplomatic correspondence than the late Mexican reply. It is true that the Mexican state courts have exclusive jurisdiction with which the Federal Government cannot interfere. The same is true in this country.

When Paul Prager, a German citizen, was hanged by a lawless mob in Collinsville, Ill., the German Government protested through the Swedish Ambassador, and our reply was that the matter was in the hands of the state courts. It was, and every last one of the lynchers was acquitted, too, and that was the end of it. Are we going to deny Mexico the use of the very reason which we used ourselves?

If the Jenkins case was an honest one, he would give the trifling bond which is required, and obtain his release. This is striking proof of something extremely rotten. He is staying in jail to give the oil propagandists material for maudlin stories about "an American in prison."

The attitude of our State Department in this matter smacks entirely too much of Prussian methods. If we have any Von Jagows in Washington we had best get rid of them. The oil interests should't be permitted to get away with this job.

AN AMERICAN.

"Meddlesome" McAdoo.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The coal operators accuse Mr. McAdoo of poor taste for injecting a few mathematical facts into the coal-wage controversy when the administration is making every effort toward settlement. The operators, of course, are quite disinterested, and actuated solely by tender solicitude for the feelings of the administration. Such unselfish devotion to the public weal is touching, indeed, but not unexpected from a group of philanthropists who, for lo, these many years, have operated their mines at a loss that the people might have coal.

Speaking of taste, however, would it not be considered exceedingly good taste on the part of the coal operators had they granted the administration the privilege of reminding Mr. McAdoo of his "embarrassing" blunder.

MUDDLED OAF.

Filthy Habit on Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

For the past two years I have been holding a position as conductor. Two-thirds of the people riding cars are the most stubborn and ready to abuse car crews. For instance, if a conductor steps up to a passenger and asks him to please stop smoking, he will make some abusive remark and also people surrounding him will say that the conductor can or cannot stop anybody from doing anything he wants to do; he is no officer of the law; and if the conductor tries to eject the party from the car many of the passengers will hurl abuse and insulting words at the conductor and then he must let matters drop for fear of bodily harm and trouble.

The same applies to asking people to kindly step forward or leave by the front door when rear end of car and platform are overcrowded during rush hours. Some women and men will growl back, "I paid my fare and can stand wherever I please." They do not realize they are not hurting the conductor but the rest of the public.

How much better would it be for the health and welfare of the public if spitting and smoking were stopped the year around on cars?

L. D. M.

Lead Men; Don't Drive!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As to H.'s idea, I thin hke is somewhat off or he would not say put the convicts in the mines and let families starve or nearly so, just because they want justice or a living wage. Now if he thinks he is wise, let H. go over and work for six months in the mines and find out what it is to go down inside the earth and make his bread and butter, and he will come back with a different idea.

Here is my idea and you will say it is O. K: Quit driving men like horses. The day of driving men is over; why don't you get down to business and make suggestions in regard to leading men? Show them, get the good will of the worker and it means production. Please the miner and he will please you and we will all be better off. Make this a free country instead of what H. wants it to be. The country wants leaders not knockers.

O. THOMAS.

THE COAL CRISIS.

Two serious blunders have been made in the coal strike. One was Secretary Wilson's offer, as mediator, of 31 per cent increase of wages, which was accepted by the miners' leaders, only to be turned down by Fuel Administrator Garfield's decision, backed by the cabinet, that an increase of only 14 per cent would be paid. Mr. Garfield insists that this increase in connection with war increases equalized the miners' wages with the increased cost of living and did not require an increase in the price of coal. An increase in the price of coal as a basic product would increase the cost of living, which has now reached an intolerable level.

Whether Mr. Garfield is right or wrong—his decision is supported by the Cabinet and Attorney-General Palmer—the action of Secretary Wilson was a blunder and probably retarded a settlement of the strike.

The other blunder, which is more serious fundamentally, was the refusal of the miners to submit the whole question of wages and working conditions to arbitration. They stood flatly on their demands and are now trying, through public suffering, on account of the coal shortage, to force submission to them. The miners are wholly wrong in their position, whatever their grievances which can be settled by arbitration. They are at war with the Government and the people.

Attorney-General Palmer, who stands pat on the Garfield decision and the Government policy of fighting out the issue, points out that acceptance by the miners of the Garfield offer would lead at once to a thorough investigation of coal mining conditions, including operators' profits as well as miners' wages, hours and working conditions, which would be the basis of a just settlement of mining problems. He says that an increase in the price of coal by an arbitrary increase of wages, for three years, would be intolerable.

Regardless of the strike situation, the Government should act upon Attorney-General Palmer's suggested plan of investigating mining conditions. Let the public know all the facts about mining as soon as possible and let us arrive at a just basis of settlement upon which to work.

The pay of miners is a complicated question, because, under the present system, the mines cannot be operated steadily without great overproduction. It is not the miners' annual income which determines the price of coal, but the actual pay they receive for getting out coal while at work. Their working days are too few to give adequate pay for the support of their families, but that is one of the conditions to be solved. Either the operating mines and miners must be reduced in numbers or new markets must be found for coal, in order to keep the mines operating.

Start the investigation with the assurance that the miners will be justly treated. This will offer a fair basis for a return to work.

Still, as a peacemaker, Dr. Garfield can hardly be called hot stuff.

LABOR TODAY AND YESTERDAY.

In these days of industrial turbulence it is interesting to advert to some of the old Anglo-Saxon principles and practices guiding the relations of employer and employe under conditions which must have borne some analogy to the present.

The right to labor and to trade, to earn one's living in any lawful manner, and to be protected in that right, is of very early origin in Anglo-Saxon law. It is confirmed in Magna Charta in the declaration that "no free man shall be deprived of his freehold or of his liberties or of his free customs." And complementary to the right all power was denied to the courts to compel the carrying out of a contract for personal service; and to this day a man who breaks a contract is liable only in damages. He cannot be compelled to work.

In these early times, as at present, guilds or associations, both of merchants or employers and of employes in trades, existed, and while protected in their chartered liberties were forbidden to engage in restraints of trade or boycotts. The first statute against such conspiracies was passed in 1305. In 1360 another statute dealt specifically with "all alliances and covins between masons, carpenters, thatchers, etc.," or between guilds. In 1436 "all bylaws in restraint of trade" were declared unlawful and void; and "no guilds or corporations shall make unlawful ordinances as to the price of their wares for their own profit and to the common hurt of the people."

The growing power of trade unions is reflected in a statute of 1503 to the effect if a man is deprived of his rights in such union no bylaw of the union may prevent his appealing to the courts.

Early in the fourteenth century the black plague nearly depopulated the country and following this labor was so scarce that in 1349 a statute was passed compelling all to work, and at the rate of wages obtaining before the plague. The law fixed the compensation of common laborers at 1 penny a day, for mowers 3 pence a day, for carpenters between 2 and 3 pence.

England then embarked upon a settled policy of fixing wages and of compelling all able-bodied men to work. The practice of fixing wages existed until the repeal of the law respecting the compensation of artisans and laborers, in 1869.

During all of this period the strike was considered an unlawful conspiracy on the ground that the wages being fixed by law a combination to obtain more was a combination for an unlawful purpose. This notion disappeared, however, in the nineteenth century after a long struggle on the part of the union.

One cannot review this history without wondering whether we are completing a circle in this problem, only to start upon another revolution.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S ARMY PLAN.

There will be wide disappointment, we believe, in that feature of Secretary Baker's report recommending a standing army of half a million.

The cost of maintaining such an army would be tremendous. The experience of the war, as Mr. Baker contends, may urge the creation of such a force, but the experience of the war also exhorts public officials to the most rigid economy. Secretary Glass of the Treasury Department, for example, estimates the needs of the Government for the next fiscal year at $5,000,000,000. He points out that the one single item of interest on our debt will exceed the total appropriations for all purposes of any peacetime Congress.

In contemplating an ideal army organization, Secretary Baker seems to have lost sight of the fact that there is a limit to the people's tax-paying capacity. But that is a stern fact with which departmental heads must concern themselves. The average citizen might hesitate to dispute a statement by the Secretary of War as to our army requirements. Fortunately, it is not necessary for the average citizen to venture his opinion. The Baker estimate is disputed by as high a military authority as Gen. Pershing, who thinks a standing army of 300,000 at the outside would be ample.

The Pershing army plan would cost the country hundreds of millions of dollars less than that proposed by Secretary Baker and the general staff. And the time is here when we've got to begin saving hundreds of millions.

GERMANY'S INDEFINITE OBLIGATIONS.

If one feature of the treaty with Germany is more subject to criticism than another on the ground of policy, it is the provision for an indefinite supervision by the principal allied and associated Powers over German economic life in the scheme of reparation.

At the conclusion of all wars the part of wisdom is to dispose of the terms of peace with the greatest expedition compatible with safety, in order that amicable relations may be quickly recemented and normal conditions restored. In the treaty with Germany the enforcement of terms, with the presence of armed forces on German soil, may extend over decades. This prospect cannot operate otherwise than to unsettle German economic and industrial conditions.

The allied and associated Powers appear to have recognized this fact after the formulation of the treaty. In Clemenceau's reply to Brockdorff-Rantzau's letter of May 29, 1919, containing observations on the draft treaty, an alternative condition was set out in these words:

> They (the Allied and Associated Powers) are, therefore, willing to accord to Germany all necessary and reasonable facilities to enable her to survey the devastated and damaged regions, and to make proposals thereafter within four months of the signing of the treaty for a settlement of the claims under each of the categories of damage for which she is liable. If within the following two months an agreement can be reached, the exact liability of Germany will have been ascertained. If agreement has not been reached by then, the arrangement as provided in the treaty will be executed.

The time within which this alternative offer might have been acted upon has now expired. It would nevertheless appear to be a measure of enlightened policy on the part of the allied and associated Powers to extend the time so that the German obligations may be definitely known and means found for their discharge. So long as the German people are imbued with the idea that their lot is one of indefinite servitude for the extinction of indefinite obligations economic and industrial stability can hardly be looked for.

The coal operators say conditions were abnormal in 1917. And that is what McAdoo says, only he calls conditions profits.

◆◆◆

LAGGING WIDENING PROJECTS.

The evils of procrastination are well illustrated by the fate of the plan to widen Eighteenth street between Washington avenue and Market, thus greatly improving an important traffic link between these points. When an effort was made to carry out the plan the city authorities decided that the city could not afford to pay for its share at that time. Now, unless the plan is carried out at once, it will probably never be accomplished, because of the construction of the new hotel at Eighteenth and Locust, which will define the limits of the street.

Sentiment in favor of the plan is again aroused and the City Plan Commission is considering the matter today.

Every year's growth of the city proves not only the value, but the necessity, of wide thoroughfares in all directions to accommodate increasing traffic. The sooner essential projects are carried out the less the cost, but promptness in improvement work of this kind is not the rule at the city hall. Projects lag interminably, while opportunity diminishes and cost increases.

We need a wider Eighteenth street. We need a wider Twelfth street north and south and the connecting southwest and northwest thoroughfares. Results lag.

Old Parties: I wonder if there's anything under that hat besides the platform?

THE OTHER TWO: ANTE UP!

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH by Clark McAdams.

DEAR HEART.

DEAR HEART, when the soft night is calling
And the little brown leaves as they fall to earth, whisper your name,
I want you.
When the drear, dismal rain is mournfully descending and the warm bright of an open fire is soothing,
I want you.
When the first balmy winds come laden with spring and youth and fire,
I want you.
When the autumn decks with scarlet its praying and supplicating hands,
I want you.
And when earth wears a virginal mantle of snow,
I want you.
Dear Heart, I want you
All the time.

After many years of investigation science has decided that we do not know why the cliff dwellers and the pueblo builders of the Southwestern United States built the towers of different shapes usually found among or standing slightly apart from those interesting ruins. Were they lookouts for defense? Then, strangely enough, the fine tower at Hovenweep Castle does not command a view suitable to defense as many similar towers do not. Were they the granaries in which the Indians stored their corn? Evidently not, since their capacity seldom could have served that purpose and almost never is any sign of grain, not a very perishable thing in that country, found in a tower. Walter Fewkes has gone into the matter thoroughly for the Government, and he frankly admits ignorance of why almost every community of that period, whether in the cliffs or the pueblos, built these beautiful towers. They had a significance as yet undiscovered to us, says this eminent archeologist, who first respects everybody's opinion and then gives it up. It amuses one to learn that a prior culture could enjoy something past subsequent finding out. We pry so into whatever one another has, feels or thinks until even in so long a time as eternity there is no privacy left. Possibly the towers of the cliff dwellers and pueblo builders were an anticipation of our own appearance among those cliffs and canyons in pursuit of our checking-up system. Maybe those people did not want to be checked up in every respect.

Most people who were in St. Louis during the World's Fair—and pretty much everybody was in St. Louis then—recalls the city chiefly for having the unusual residence places into which one enters through stone gates. The regularity with which people who have been here speak of these places serves to remind us who live here how unusual they are. How long they will last is a question. In Russia the Bolsheviki have made all such places the rendezvous of the poor, who camp out in the great houses much as one camps out in the mountains. The places of St. Louis are part of the city's charm. They have always been safe, and we hope they keep on being safe. It puzzles one to make out what people would remember of St. Louis if we did not have them.

Sir: I hope that I have not been poaching on the preserves of any other licensed sign hunter in picking up a few down in Egypt, nor been guilty of shooting 'em out of season. At that, sign hunting down there is not what it might be at present. Perhaps the real gamey ones have been run out with the frogs and snakes since they began draining off the swamps. Here is one displayed on a street car at Mound City:

It is a fine to ride a bicycle on this sidewalk

I was unable to decide whether the article should have been left off and the impression conveyed that it was fine riding, etc., or whether (and this seemed more probable from the condition of the walk) they had adopted this somewhat cruel and unusual method of making delinquents work their way out of limbo.

In a restaurant at Cairo was the printed announcement:

Computation meal tickets $5.00 for $4.50

And on a cleaning and mending emporium the statement:

There is a pictur galry in other side

Scrawled on a houseboat on the Mississippi side was this one:

Cy of Sent Louis

Perhaps Si didn't take spelling in his.

A meat market window bore the legend:

Sir Loin stake 28 cts. per pound

Which would seem to indicate that titles come high.

There is a tone of gentle moral suasion in some of the verboten signs down there which contrasts pleasantly with the more imperative styles we are accustomed to. For instance, this one was displayed on the door of a meat market at Shawneetown:

Kindly leave your dog outside

And at Pinckneyville a restaurant front bore the request:

Please don't spit on the walk. It looks bad.

Also on a shoe store at the same place:

Please don't sit in the doorway

Porters and gentlemen not accompanying ladies please use the other waiting room

The captain and the mate were at loggerheads. They scowled whenever they met, and seized opportunities of scoring off each other with fearful glee. Each took a turn at making the day's entries in the logbook, and the mate, when making his entries, was very surprised to find, in the captain's handwriting, the words:

"June 2, 1917.—Mate drunk."

He stared at it wrathfully a moment, then a slow grin broke over his face. He took his pen out and wrote:

"June 3, 1917.—Captain sober."—London Opinion.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

A CRUEL HOAX.

From the New York Herald.

AN old friend who caused nearly 24 hours of real excitement along the Mexican border four years ago turned up again yesterday when our neighbor the Times published a three-column special dispatch from El Paso, Tex., announcing the discovery of the so-called plan of San Diego, under which Mexican malcontents were to form a combination with American negroes and Apache Indians, murder all adult whites in the United States and take back into the Mexican Republic the states of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and California.

The people of El Paso are an amiable sort as a rule. They are not averse to putting over their little joke on the effete East from time to time, but we confess to some surprise that any El Pasoan of this day and generation would be so heartless as to perpetrate that venerable document, the plan of San Diego, on a dignified newspaper like the Times.

This "plan," word for word as it appears in the Times, was written about 1850, just after the Mexican War and before our own Civil War. It contemplated a rising of negro slaves in the United States as well as Indian uprisings which were to start with the Apaches in Arizona. Like most Mexican plots, it came to nothing, but the original "plan" became a historical document of importance and as such was deposited with other Government records in Monterey, in the State of Nuevo Leon.

There it was found in 1915, 65 years later, by a butcher named Ferrico, two barbers named Gonzales and Garza and some associates who had just decided to start a Mexican revolution. They were so impressed by the beauties of its composition and the loftiness of its sentiments that they copied it word for word, leaving off only the original signatures and substituting their own instead. They they took it to San Diego, Tex., where more signatures were obtained. It was labeled the plan of San Diego, printed in handbill form and scattered broadcast.

Of course the hoax was promptly discovered, the gentlemen who appropriated the venerable document having neglected to eliminate the paragraphs referring to the slavery of negroes in the United States and to the uprising of the Apaches in Arizona. They also left in a declaration of vengeance on 'the traitors to our race," which referred specifically to Mexicans who assisted the United States during the Mexican War, all of which ought to have betrayed the real character of the document to anybody stumbling across it in these days.

JUDGE POLLOCK'S BEER DECISION.

From the Galveston News.

It was "in view" of several facts and circumstances that a Federal Judge sitting in Missouri came to the conclusion that beer containing as much as 2.75 per cent of alcohol is not intoxicating, but the most illuminative of these seems to have been "the grave doubt as to its constitutionality"—that is, as to the constitutionality of the war-time prohibition act. Is one to infer that if the constitutionality of the war-time prohibition act had been finally affirmed, beer containing as much as 2.75 per cent of alcohol would be intoxicating? Prohibition litigation has been productive of many daring feats of judicial ratiocination, but none, we believe, more thrilling to sober reason than this one. As rational as the reasoning of this Judge was irrational, was the argument which Mr. Root made against this act in the Supreme Court on the same day. It will not be easy to combat his assertion that the war-time prohibition act was designed to take away the "year of grace" which the constitutional amendment promised the liquor dealers for disposing of their stocks.

How Shall Women Learn To Vote Intelligently?

By FREDERIC H. BRITTON.

A WOMAN reader asks that the Post-Dispatch print on its Woman's Page information specially designed for the guidance of feminine voters who desire to vote conscientiously and intelligently.

She writes: "An article of this kind, read during a leisure hour of the evening, could be thoroughly absorbed and digested during the next day, when the home-maker's hands are busy with the tasks that, through daily practice, can be done almost mechanically."

The same request is made by a second woman reader who writes from a Cass avenue address. "We do not," she says, "wish to vote the Democratic or Republican ticket just because of husbands who happen to vote that way. I for one wish to get to the bottom of the facts and I find that most all the men I ask can't tell me why they vote as they do."

One thing these two women voters, all other women voters, should keep in mind in forming a judgment that they are prepared to register in an election is this: That both parties contain a great deal of wisdom, integrity, sound conviction and unselfish patriotism. Another thing they should keep in mind is that both parties in addition contain a great many undesirable elements and both have an approximately equal capacity for blundering, though fortunately both have seldom blundered in respect to the same things at the same time.

They should also remember that it would not be possible to print on the Woman's Page all the various facts and circumstances and interpretations that may properly be considered by women in deciding how they will vote. For a wise decision they must read the whole paper, giving careful attention to the quality of passing events and those matters which throw light on the merits of public questions and the ability, character and usefulness of men—and we must add now women—in public life.

The Republican and Democratic parties have existed almost from the foundation of our Government, though neither has been known during all that time by the name by which it is now known.

Pretending to disagree on some things on which, as a matter of fact, they were virtually agreed, they nevertheless actually have differed on a great number of things, some of them important at particular times and some important at all times. Historically, the fundamental difference between them has been a difference in view as to the nature and extent of the powers of the Government at Washington.

The Federalists, the Whigs, the Republicans, as one party has been called at successive times, stood for a strong Washington Government with a minimum of restrictions on its powers and activities and have placed interpretations on the Constitution supporting their view.

What Parties Stood For.

The Democratic-Republicans, or the Democrats, as they have been called since they dropped the hyphen, stood for a maximum of restrictions on the Washington Government and for strong state governments, and likewise found ample constitutional authority for their views.

This did not mean that the one party wanted a Federal Government to be so strong and to include so much in its jurisdiction as to extinguish the state governments. Nor did it mean that the other party, except possibly from 1861-65, wanted state governments so strong as to make a mere figurehead of the Federal Government or extinguish it entirely. The theoretical extremes represented by the two parties offered room for wide variations in opinion.

How specific differences, apparently having small relation to it and, indeed, strongly suspected of being due to self-interest, may be traced to this fundamental distinction between the parties is illustrated by the tariff. Democrats, believing protection harmful, professed that the Federal Constitution does not confer and ought not to confer any power to levy tariff taxes for any purpose except the legitimate expenses of government. Republicans, believing protection beneficial, professed that the Federal powers are broad enough to levy tariff taxes not only for revenue purposes, but to afford incidental protection to national industries.

Women can find no better preparation for the duties of a voter than a study of the history of their country and to an understanding of that history an intelligent comprehension of the principles and aims of its political parties is necessary.

Still, in the young civic life of the woman who will cast her first vote in 1920, nothing can be imagined that is of less important than what either party stood for in 1846 or 1860 or 1896 or even in 1912 or 1916. But to the woman who will vote for the first time in 1920, a matter of the greatest and most vital importance is what the two parties stand for in 1920.

The old lines on which the parties divided began long ago to run together and to be obliterated. That the parties are now separated by advocacy of any essential principle or permanent policy is denied by very many. While differing on some points, the declarations of principles on which they stand and which, in consequence, are called "platforms" are often strikingly similar. These platforms embody solemn pledges to the people of action in the event that the party is sustained by a majority at the polls.

What Men Have Disregarded.

A serious phase of our later-year politics, as controlled exclusively by the men, has been a disregard after election of these pledges, so that the voter who made his deliberate choice when he marked his ballot finds out later that he did not know after all what he was voting for. Cynical ones have charged that the planks of a platform have come to be only a provisional structure to ride into office on. A pledge on which both parties defaulted promised a conservation law in 1912. It is still unenacted. Both parties in Missouri in 1916 contracted with the people to take the preliminaries to the adoption of a new Constitution. The pledge is still unfulfilled. The fraud on the public in violation of party obligations is something for whose extirpation the women voters may throw their fine influence.

With the disappearance of the acute party divisions of the past, a new and growing classification of voters has come into being, one that may be credited with a service of such high patriotism and definite value in recent years as to surpass that of other voters. These are the "independent voters."

No better system than government by political parties has been devised for free peoples, but, like other human systems, it is very faulty. Independent voters in large numbers are a corrective for the evils of the party system.

Sooner or later the new women voters will come to know exactly what a "political machine" is—a form of auxiliary organization for which the party is an end, not a means, and which is dedicated completely to party success. The independent voter is the answer to the partisan machine. Fear of the independent vote has held many a successful party manager back from excesses and wrongdoing.

The reason some women are unable to find out from their men friends why they are Republicans or Democrats is because those men are Republicans or Democrats from sentiment or tradition, not from conviction. They have come to have for their party, irrespective of its professed principles, some such feeling as a man has for his club. They are chagrined when their party is defeated, not so much because of its loss of the opportunity to put its policies into effect, as because of their aversion to see the opposing party win and obtain the places of honor and emolument. Not to support their party ticket they feel to be unclubby toward their fellow members and the candidates on its ticket. "Our country right or wrong" may be a good toast, but "our party, right or wrong," is an execrable one.

The Independent Voter Without Attachments.

The independent voter has only a temporary attachment to any party, perhaps no acknowledged attachment at all. He holds to the view that, generally speaking, the best results from the people's standpoint will be obtained when one party alternates frequently with the other in control of the offices. The party he votes for at a given election is decided on after study because he believes that under all conditions it is likely to give the best service to the people at that particular time. The capacity and uprightness of the candidates and not only their willingness but their probable ability to carry out faithfully their promises to the public have more appeal for him than the professions of platforms and stump orators.

The independent voter will often cast his ballot for the national ticket of one party and the state and county ticket of the opposing party. And none of his tickets may be a straight ticket. His state ballot particularly is likely to be checkerboarded with substitutions of opposing candidates.

The women of Missouri will obtain the vote just at a time when a great opportunity is presented. Under the exclusive control of the men, both parties have made a sorry mess of our State affairs. Probably for some years the women cannot do better than to vote for strong candidates who are equipped to pull Missouri out of the mire, selecting them without any regard to the ticket on which their names appear. In the primaries they can see to it that only such men get on any ticket.

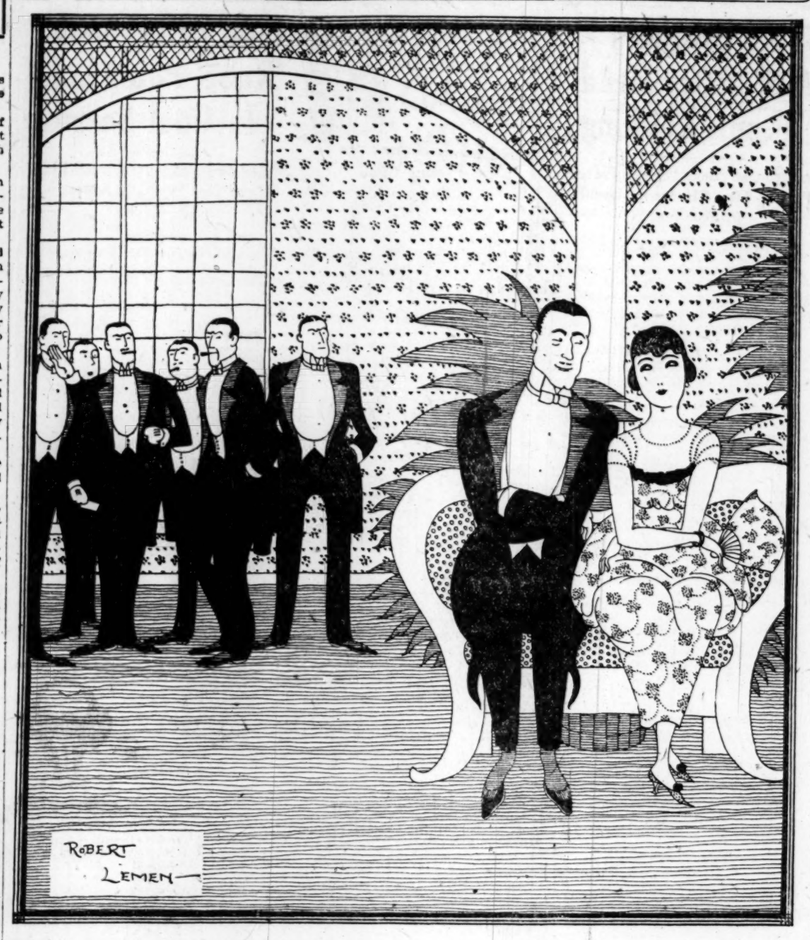

The suggestion of one of the two women who wrote the Post-Dispatch calls up a picture in the near future of several hundred thousand Missouri home-makers, whose active minds will be intent on hopeful plans for removing the reproach of incompetency and dereliction in our State affairs, while their fair hands fly through household tasks so familiar as to be performed mechanically. Could politics have a more attractive picture?

And in municipal elections the independent voter of the most progressive and useful type ignores politics altogether. Election laws are all the time being so modified as to make it more and more easy to ignore politics in such elections.

Does the fact that a man believes or disbelieves in a protective tariff qualify him to lay the best sort of pavements at the lowest cost? Nobody but a machine politician who desired to combine city voters into a unit of a big party organization could ever discover why a man's views on currency problems added to his merit as manager of a waterworks, or how his convictions as to foreign policy fitted him to construct sewers, direct a park system or run a police department.

The independent man voter differs from the dyed-in-the-wool Republican or Democrat in placing country above party. Can the women voters do better?

A Plain Case of Hoarding

The Sandman Story for Tonight

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

Mr. Fox's Ride.

MR. FOX had been over to the farm, but Mr. Dog was on the watch, for the farmer had gone to the field for the day with his men to get in the hay and left Mr. Dog to look out for the poultry, because Mr. Fox had been seen about the farm the day before.

When he found he could not get his dinner there, Mr. Fox trotted off. But when he reached the hay field he stopped and looked through the fence at the men loading the hay into the cart.

As he looked he had an idea. "If only I could hide in that hay," he said, "I would get even with Mr. Man for setting Mr. Dog to watch, i. e. For, once in the barn under that pile of hay, who is to know I am there? And at night it will be easy to slip out and help myself to a fat hen or duck before Mr. Dog is awake.

"Besides that, what a fine ride I shall have, tucked under the hay! But, of course, I cannot do it, because the men will not leave the hay cart in the field. They ride on the hay right into the barn."

Just then a dark cloud came over the sun, and in a few minutes more down came the rain and the men ran for shelter to the barn, first covering with a heavy canvas the cart of hay.

It did not take Mr. Fox long, you may be sure, to slide under the fence and get under the hay, and there he stayed all snug as a bug, waiting for the men to come back and finish their work.

When the rain was over the men returned to the field and began to load on more hay, and then away to the barn they drove, while Mr. Fox under the hay was thinking what a fortunate fellow he was to have such a nice ride, and he was sure of a feast that night as well.

But he did not know that the hay had to be unloaded, and the cart go back for another load. If he had he would not have been so happy.

The men with long pitchforks began to unload the hay and pitch it into the loft, and after a while Mr. Fox began to wonder what was going on, but he dared not peek out to see.

Nearer and nearer came the fork, though, of course, he did not know what it was, and not until the sharp points struck his back did Mr. Fox know his danger.

Down came the fork, sharp, on him and out flew Mr. Fox from the hay, while the men shouted, and Mr Dog barked, and after him they all ran. But, though he got away and reached his den safely, Mr. Fox limped the rest of his days from the hurt he got from the pitchfork, which struck his leg just as he jumped from the cart.

Whenever he sees men in a field pitching hay Mr. Fox runs, for he can always feel the point of the sharp fork and he has no wish to take another ride, and if you should ever happen to see a fox that limps you may be quite sure it is the same Mr. Fox who stole a ride and expected to outwit Mr. Man and Mr. Dog, but instead was caught in his own trap.

Brothers Entertaining Sisters

By Sophie Irene Loeb

Even Though It Means Sacrifice of Self a Brother Should Strive Constantly to Make His Sisters Happy

SEVERAL times I have been asked as to the obligations due a sister from a brother, in the matter of entertaining her.

And now comes a letter from a young woman who longs to join merry parties, but having no boy friends, must depend on her brothers.

She says: "My brothers do not ask be to go to dances. Should I ask them to take me? The trouble with me is that I am very sensitive, and, of course, if they make a remark about taking me when they do not want to, I would not go for the world.

"And if I go myself or with my girl friend, they act all right, but it is such a different feeling when you can go with somebody who will be with you and dance with you.

"I don't like my brothers to feel as if I were in the way, and that is the real reason I don't like to ask them to go with me any place. They do not go out with any girls, to the best of my knowledge.

"Then if my mother just as good as tells them to take me, feeling the way I do, I do not feel like going. I really would rather stay home than go with somebody who does not want me.

"Of course, if I go to dances, as I do once in a while (without my brothers, but where I know they will be), they treat me all right, don't leave me alone, and all that.

"Please, if you can, tell me what to do about my brothers, and anything else that you think will be of help to me, through the Post-Dispatch, as I am a steady reader of same. I thank you for anything you can say to help me."

Act for Yourself.

I can thoroughly understand the sensitive spirit of this girl, the reluctance with which she goes out with her brother who, she feels, would rather be with other young women.

I can appreciate the heartaches and miseries that must be hers many a time when she goes to places and has to depend only on her brothers for amusement.

I would say to this girl that the best thing for her to do is to join some nice girls' club or organization, where she can go and meet other girls, and through them make the acquaintances of their brothers and their boy friends.

By getting acquainted with other nice girls, who will most likely be glad to invite her to their homes, and to other little private parties, after a friendship has been established, the girl can thus form acquaintances and make friends. It is hard continually depending on her brothers and making no other efforts for independent friendships.

On the other hand, if I were a brother of a girl like this I would not be content with taking her out myself all the time, but I would endeavor to introduce my sister to my own boy friends that are all right, and thus give her the opportunity she craves of not being entirely dependent on brothers.

Forget All Selfishness.

I wonder how many young men realize how their sister feels when she knows that the brothers would rather be taking the sister of somebody else.

The broad-minded young man who has a heart will see to it that when he takes his sister out she will never get that impression.

A brother should make her feel that he is happy to have her and to give her a good time as far as he can. Even though he sacrifices something for himself, it is the manly thing, the thing that he will never regret.

After all, when such a young man looks back at those youthful years, after members of families drift apart, and reflects that he left nothing undone to prove himself the real brother, not only in time of trouble but in instances of pleasure—at such a time he can say to himself, "I have been tried and not found wanting."

It is so much easier for a young man to get his good time because he can always take the initiative where other young girls are concerned; but it is so much more difficult for his sister.

It certainly behooves him to give something of himself in order that his sister may not feel a burden to him, but as someone who really is interested in her happiness.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By Helen Rowland.

THE hardest things on earth for a woman to keep: A secret, a dollar, a cook, her figure, her temper, and a man's devotion.

An optimist is a person with self-rising spirits, a self-starting smile, and a 60-horsepower imagination.

Some men make love with the directness of an express train, others as haltingly as a local, and just a rare few with the charm, smoothness and interesting variation of a "special."

No matter how deeply in love with one man a girl may be, she can't help feeling a little thrill of vanity at the glint with which another man's eyes light up at sight of her.

The difference between an "eligible" and a "confirmed bachelor" is merely that one thinks of the cozy evenings around the domestic hearth and the other thinks of the dull gray mornings when the coal bills come in whenever he looks at a pretty girl.

A man's love is not actually dead until he begins to think of a woman merely as the person who runs up bills, makes him wear rubbers and expects him to explain where he has been all afternoon.

Hitch your wagon to a star, but don't be disappointed if it turns out a perambulator instead of a twin-six. One is as expensive in the end as the other is in the beginning, anyway.

Cheer up! Life will never lose all its charm until that tragic day when lovers decide to strike and demand double pay for every kiss after 10 o'clock and Saturday and Sunday off.

The Curious Quest

"NOTHING has happened, dear, that is not good," he assured her. "Nothing is going to happen that is not good for both of us. Now will you just sit still in this cab while I go across to that telephone box and telephone to your people?"

She obeyed him, but when he came back he could see that she was still distressed. He took her hand and held it firmly.

"Dear," he said, "you must please start the day by being a little brave. You have a lot to go through before it is over, but I want you to try to think of one thing and trust in me. Your troubles are over. Not only your troubles, but the troubles of your two sisters are over. My troubles are over. We have had a hard struggle, but today it has come to an end."

"Don't tell me too much," she begged. "I'm afraid I cannot bear it. But tell me a little."

"We shall neither of us ever know again what it means to be absolutely poor," he said.

"Do you mean that you have a rise? A better situation?"

He smiled cheerfully.

"Something even better than that," he assured her. "Everything will be made absolutely clear to you quite naturally if you will only trust me and remember that I love you as I love nothing else on earth. Just sit still and take things as they come and believe that what is coming is good."

She pressed his hands with sudden fervor. All that she would have said was in her eyes. Suddenly the taxicab stopped.

"Where on earth are we?" she asked.

He handed her out on to the pavement and paid the taxicab man.

"It's a church!" she gasped, looking at him in amazement.

He led her across the threshold. The church was in a busy neighborhood, and no one took any notice of them as they passed in. Bliss removed his hat and stood still for a moment.

"Dearest," he said softly, "is this a great shock to you? Try and bear it! We are going to be married."

She laughed a little hysterically, and then, before she could say anything, she was suddenly conscious that he was leading her up the aisle, and that the organ was playing soft music. There was scarcely any one else in the building. The words of the service commenced almost as soon as they reached the chancel. A pew-opener gave her away. Her responses were almost mechanical. The clergyman summoned them afterwards into the vestry, where they signed their names. Bliss laid a piece of paper upon the table and whispered in the clergyman's ear.

"Don't look at that until after we have gone. It is a little thank-offering. You can make what use of it you like."

The clergyman shook hands with them, they walked down the aisle and once more out into the street. She caught at his arm.

"Ernest," she faltered, "do you realize what we have done?"

"Of course I do," he answered cheerfully. "I have been preparing for it for a long time. Bless you, the banns have been up for nearly a month!"

"And you never told me!"

"I never told you," he replied, "for a reason which you will understand in a very short time. All I can say is, please still trust in me."

"Another taxicab!" she exclaimed, as he held up his hand. "Ernest," she added with a frown, "I'm afraid I shall have to begin lecturing you very early. Even if you have a good place, you can't afford taxicabs all the time."

He laughed as he gave the man the address. Then he sat by her side and held her tightly to him.

"Dearest," he whispered fervently, "this is the most wonderful moment of my life. You belong to me for always—you are my wife—do you realize it? My wife!"

He kissed her, heedless of the passers-by. She looked at him wonderingly. His lips were quivering as though with anticipation, his eyes were bright. They drew up at last in Harley Street. He helped her to alight, paid the man, and rang the bell of the familiar front door, which was opened almost immediately by the some pompous servant.

"Is Sir James Aldroyd in?"

"What name, sir?"

"Just tell him a patient," Bliss replied. "I have come to see him professionally."

"Have you an appointment, sir?" the man asked.

"I have," Bliss told him grimly. "I made it twelve months ago."

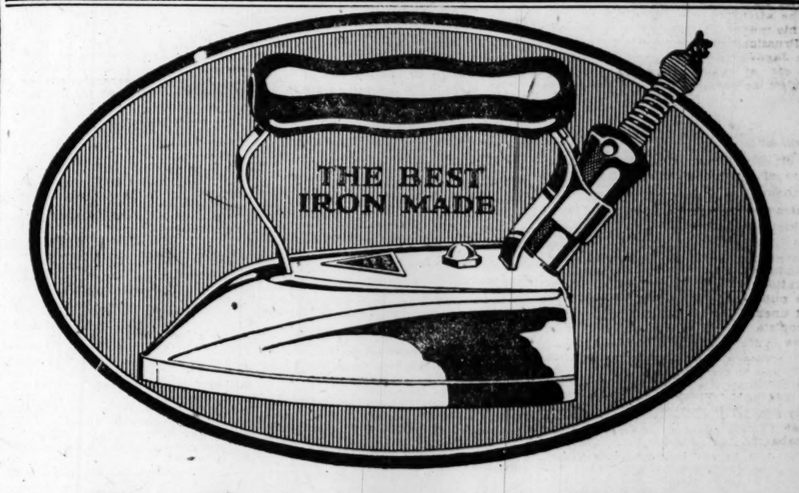

The servant stared at him for a moment in a puzzled manner.

Then he showed them both into a waiting room and left them. Frances caught his arm.

"But, Ernest!" she exclaimed. "You are not ill? Don't tell me that you are ill!"

Pikeway Council Asks New Foe For Turkey Day Clash

Student Representatives, in Resolution, Want Billikens Placed Earlier on Schedule.

SAY GAME IS SECONDARY

Sportsmanship of Blue and White in Matter of "Heckling" Is Criticized.

The Washington University Men's Council, a board consisting of 19 students made up of one representative from each department of varsity activity, at its monthly meeting last night passed a resolution disapproving of St. Louis University as an adversary for Washington University football elevens on Thanksgiving day. The Men's Council suggests that the St. Louis U. game be played earlier during the gridiron season and that another school supplant it for the final contest of the campaign.

The resolution will be submitted to the Athletic Council, which body will probably consider it at a meeting tomorrow night, or some other time before the 1920 schedule is arranged.

The Pikeway student representatives base their action primarily on the fact their eleven plays the Thanksgiving contest after a hard conference schedule, whereas the Billikens' season is entirely pointed to the Washington game. They maintain that it is Washington's annual hope to win Conference honors, and the St. Louis U. game is a secondary consideration to this.

During the past season the Pikers played four Valley games, and 10 days after the Missouri contest had to meet the "Bills," who all of this time had been preparing for the local battle. The Council maintains that its team gains nothing by defeating St. Louis University, and takes a greater risk than its opponents.

"Heckling" Tactics Deplored.

The Men's Council also charges that the St. Louis University student body does not assume the proper attitude of sportsmanship during the games and to demonstrate this contention refers to "heckling tactics which were in evidence throughout the game of last Thursday."

Several of the alumni had suggested the action of last night and the students assert that it was at their suggestion that last night's resolution was framed.

SOONERS LIKELY TO BE ADMITTED TO VALLEY CONFERENCE THIS WEEK

An application of the University of Oklahoma for enterance into the Missouri Valley Conference will in all probability be acted upon at the annual meeting of directors of athletics and faculty representatives of that body at Kansas City, Friday and Saturday. The Sooners have made several unsuccessful applications, but the concensus is that they will be admitted to the Conference this week.

It is thought that Nebraska will ask that the action of the various schools in refusing to place the Cornhuskers on the 1920 schedules be reconsidered. Recently the Lincoln institution sent a circular letter to the M. V. C. schools in which it explained its position, and requested a readjustment of conditions. One informant of the Post-Dispatch stated that he would not be surprised if Nebraska made application for readmission into the circuit.

Coach Dick Rutherford said he would arrange baseball and track schedules for next spring, while in Kansas City. This means that the Pikers will have their first regular diamond varsity in years; and will engage in track and field athletics on a greater scale than heretofore.

14 TEAMS TIED IN BIKE RACE AFTER 32 HOURS

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Fourteen teams in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden were tied at 8 o'clock this morning, the thirty-second hour. They had covered 641 miles and five laps at that time.

The French-Belgian team of Charlon and Tiberghien had fallen one lap behind the others, who were led by Drobach of the Boston team.

The record for the thirty-second hour is 706 miles and one lap, made by Lawson and Root in 1915.

Keith Defeats Watkins.

Frank Keith, representing the Rex Hall in the city three-cushion league, defeated Ed Watkins of Kern's, 50 to 28, in the match played at the Rex last night. The conquest gives the Rex four straight victories for the season. Keith had a high run of six. Dr. Macklin and Fred Hartman will play at Arata's tonight.

The Australian team probably will include Norman Brookes, Gerald Patterson and two other players yet to be selected.

It is understood that the United State association will vote to challenge for the trophy at its next annual meeting.

Jockey Frankie O'Niell, on Visit to Parents Here, Tells How Game Thrives in France

Premier Rider of France for Last 10 Years Says Sport There Is a Business, Without Bookmakers or Touts—Races Run on Straightaway Turf Tracks.

There was a reunion in St. Louis today as romantic and full of human interest as any ever shown on the moving picture screen, when John J. O'Neill, who had quit chopping wood on his farm at Hematite, Mo., to meet his world-famous son, Frankie O'Neill, premier jockey of France, greeted him at Hotel Statler. The scene was graced by the presence of Frankie's mother, who had accompanied her husband from Hematite, and who made no attempt to conceal her pride.

FRANKIE O'NEILL.

It was just 21 years ago, when racing was a leading sport in St. Louis, that the elder O'Neill lifted his son, then 11 years old, to the back of Aunt Jane, a selling plater, and told him to "tear loose and win." It was the boy's first appearance as a jockey.

This morning Frankie's father chuckled as he recalled the incident and related it to the young O'Neill and a reporter.

"Aunt Jane ran away with you, can you now imagine such a thing?" he said. "At that you came in fourth and might have won if I had given you a whip, as you had advised. I was scared to death at the end of the race, when that horse kept on going, but you hung on all right."

"Bookmaking Killed Game."

The little man—O'Neill is now 32 years old—who has been riding for William K. Vanderbilt, Baron de Rothschild and other millionaire horse owners of France, smiled at the reminiscence, but did not appear to be particularly affected.

"Bookmaking killed the game in America," he said, as though not wishing to follow up his early days on the St. Louis track.

There was no display of wealth on the part of O'Neill. There was not a diamond in his makeup. The atmosphere of the race track, as it is breathed in America, was absent. He looked more like a successful business man. He explained that racing is a business in France. The sporting feature is enjoyed only by the millionaire owners of thoroughbreds. The jockey is not lionized by the public there as he used to be here. Above all, he said, racing is a clean game in France. He attributed that to Government regulation and the partimutuel system of betting. There are no bookmakers or touts in France, he said.

O'Neill has topped the list of jockeys in France for the last 10 years, winning an average of 150 races a year. He also has raced in England and Spain. Although carefully avoiding any reference to his wealth, it having been estimated that he has accumulated the larger part of a million dollars, he admitted that he had earned "good money." It is said that his annual retainer from Vanderbilt is more than $10,000. In addition to that he gets a bonus every time he wins a race.

Will Return to France.

"Don't let us talk about the financial end," he said. "Income taxes are too heavy over here, and, besides, I'm going back to France in January."

O'Neill said he won the Grand Prix at Longchamps this year with McKinley, the latest acquisition of the Vanderbilt stable.

"That is some horse," he soliloquized. "Won every time up but the last and in that he stumbled and hurt a leg. We had to retire him. He's the fastest horse I ever rode."

French Tracks on Turf.

He said the French track is different than the American track, the courses in the former country being of turf and straightaway instead of circular or oval shaped. In France the horses are trained at country quarters and are not stabled at the tracks as they are here.

"There was no racing in France in 1915," he said, "but that was the only year that the war had any effect on it. Last year was the biggest in the history of the game. That was because there were so many Americans over there. Nearly all the American soldiers attended the races. On Grand Prix day the total receipts were 7,000,000 francs. The Government gets 10 per cent of the revenue, but spends most of the income on breeding and maintaining a high standard of the game."

O'Neill's mother demonstrated her pride in the celebrity when he consented to pose for a picture.

"Look your prettiest, Frankie," she said. "You've come a long way to have that picture taken."

He asked his parents to join with him in a family group, but they modestly declined. They could not be induced to get into the picture.

"No," said Mrs. O'Neill, "he is the one the people are interested in, not us."

Won Fame in the East.

Before going abroad O'Neill won renown on the Eastern tracks in this country. After a campaign at the old Fairgrounds he was taken in hand by Newton Bennington, a former well-known horse owner, and introduced to the New York public. His success there attracted the attention of Vanderbilt and when he became a bit too heavy for the American rules he had no trouble getting a commission to ride in France. He went over there weighing 112 pounds. He is only two pounds over that now.

He arrived in New York several days ago, accompanied by his wife and youngest child, a girl. Two other children, a boy and a girl, are in Paris in charge of a governess.

O'Neill said he expected to leave St. Louis tonight for Dallas, Tex., where he has some business to transact. He will return in about 12 days, he said, and will spend the holidays on the farm at Hematite. He will sail for France Jan. 15. The racing season opens March 14 and continues until Nov. 14.

His last visit to St. Louis was in the winter of 1912. He was impressed today with the growth of the city and went to the roof garden of the Statler to view the environs.

The O'Neills formerly lived at 3830 Sullivan avenue.

Gould Brothers And Sister Head Tennis Rankings

Members of Same Family Placed First in Five Classes by Local Committee.

The ranking committee of the St. Louis Tennis Association completed the second half of its annual task yesterday when the men's doubles, mixed doubles and the women's, juniors' and boys' divisions were classified.

As a result of the investigations of the committee the name Gould figures at the top of the list in five out of eight instances. Miss Corinne Gould, holder of many titles, is, of course, at the head of women's singles, the women's doubles and the mixed doubles. One of her younger brothers, Spencer Gould, ranks at the top of the boys' division, while two of them, Spencer and Harland, head the boys' doubles.

Josties and Drewes were practically without opposition in the selection of a ranking men's doubles team, Haase and Brown figuring second best. Several strong combinations did not figure in enough competitions to deserve a ranking.

Dan Diesel headed the junior singles and, with Pasmore, led the junior doubles. This division includes a large number of rapidly improving young players and the selection as between several of them was made on a very narrow margin.

MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION WILL BAR OUTSIDE STARS FROM TENNIS TOURNEYS

The Municipal Tennis Association at a special meeting last night decided that hereafter the municipal championship tournament would be a closed affair and that any player who represented another organization in a tournament would be unable to compete for honors. This action was taken, it was announced, to prevent a restricted few from monopolizing all the tennis honors in the city.

One of the rules of the new constitution and by-laws adopted provides that no person holding office in another tennis association may hold office in the municipal. As a result, Dr. G. H. Rice, president; Glenn W. Brown, vice president, and H. W. Weege, secretary, tendered resignations, which were accepted.

John E. Mooney was selected as the new president; J. W. Zeuschel, vice president; Harvey Frollehstein, secretary, with Robert Moult remaining as treasurer.

A vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Rice in recognition of his service while head of the Municipal Association.

We take it the insurgent three
Would like to can old Banny.
They summon him before the court
And will not let him function;
And now the latest indoor sport
Is baseball by injunction.

In New York City they will strive
To stage a battle royal;
But they must reckon with the five
Who to B. B., are loyal.
If they can roll Ban Johnson's log
They'll win out in a canter;
But if the tail can't wag the dog
They'll leave the league instanter.

I see our local soccer chaps
Are in mid-season fettle;
They're pulling off their Sunday scraps
To test each other's mettle.
To make the grade a soccer star
Should be a first class mittist,
As nearly all their battles are
Survivals of the fittist.

I notice where the Navy goat
Gave Army's mule a licking.
Because that animal of note
Was rather shy on kicking.
The Navy huskies turned the trick
And made it quite a slaughter;
The Army mule had lost its kick
From drinking too much water.

ChampionHerman Twice Flcors Foe

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 2.—Pete Herman, bantamweight champion, who fights Kid Regan at St. Louis Thursday, had an easy time defeating Patsy Johnson of Trenton at the Olympia A. A. last night. Johnson was outclassed by the champion's exhibition of skill and punch. At the close Johnson was badly used up, although he managed to stay in the ring until the end of the sixth round.

Johnson was knocked down in the third round, when Herman switched over a left hook, and again in the fourth round when the champion uncorked a similar blow. Each time that the plucky Trenton man went down it was with such force the crowd marveled that the diminutive Jerseyite was able to regain his feet. Each time Johnson went down he took a count of nine.

After flooring his opponent the title holder did not press his advantage but eased up on him.

From Johnson's standpoint it was not much of a battle because the Jersey boy was always on the defensive and did not come back often enough to make the fight interesting.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis defeated John Olin in two straight falls of a wrestling match here last night. The first fall was obtained in 50 minutes, while the second required less than one minute.

Cliff Brady and 'Rube' Potee Lead In Goal Scoring

Miller and Scullin Forward Players Tied With Six Scores for Each.

Cliff Brady of the Scullins and "Rube" Potee, Ben Millers, are the leading goal scorers in the St. Louis Soccer League at present, with six points each. Tommy Mitchell of the Innisfails and Hap Marre, Millers, are giving the leaders a close run, as each has counted five times. Matt Diedrichsen and Allie Schwarz have each scored four times.

The others follow in the order named: Prindable, Quinn, Mulvey, Roony and Miller, three; McCaffery, Schweppe, Dunn, Corrigan and Mulligan, two; Milan, Byrne, Fitzgerald, McHenry, Reddon, Murphy, J. Brannigan, O'Shea and Sucher, one.

May Play Cup Tilt Sunday.

Although the officials of the U. S. F. A. do not meet until next Sunday, there is a chance that efforts will be made by the St. Louis league heads to be allowed to play the third round cup contest between the Ben Millers and Scullins next Sunday. These two aggregations are scheduled to oppose each other in a regular league battle on that date. The Innisfails play the Screw Co. in the other battle.

There will be a regular executive meeting of officials of the local circuit at President Barker's office next Friday night.

Match With Jess Willard Is Only Hope for Fred Fulton

Stymied in Heavyweight Championship Title Progress Because of Defeat by Dempsey and by Refusal of European Stars to Meet Him, Minneapolis Boxer Has Gloomy Outlook.

By John E. Wray.

PROMOTERS in this country who are seeking a peg on which to hang heavyweight championship interest, appear to have overlooked the fact that Fred Fulton is back on the continent open for engagements with all comers, while out in Lawrence, Kan., is resting one Jess Willard, who only five months ago was world's champion and a hot favorite to beat Dempsey.

Here is a bout that would hold keen interest for those interested in title affairs. Fulton and Willard were matched before Dempsey and the title holder were brought together. The bout was not held because of the wartime antipathy to professional boxers, not in the service.

Judging by the sentiment expressed at the time, Fulton would have been favorite to defeat Willard had the event proceeded to a finality. If the former champion and the lanky Minneapolitan were to meet now the contest would furnish a comparison as between Fulton and Dempsey, and if it resulted favorably to Fulton, would force Dempsey to oppose Fulton again.

Next to a Fulton-Dempsey match, a Willard-Fulton go is one heavyweight near-title contest that appears to hold out prospects of being a real scrap.

Nobody Home When Fred Called.

Fulton is in hard fortune. None of the European cracks would fight him for fear of losing a chance at a big Dempsey purse. Now that he's on this side Dempsey will not engage to box anybody until he cleans up a little of that soft film and foreign fight money.

On the entire horizon there is no other prospective match for Fulton that would draw as well as a mustard plaster, aside from a Willard or a Dempsey contest. He can't even land one with Bob Martin, the Interallied champion.

Martin's manager will not let him take a chance with a dangerous man like Fulton for a year or more to come and we can see where he's right.

Fulton has cleaned the field, except for Dempsey and Willard. If Jess would consent to quit his oil wells and start training, a match between him and Fulton might be arranged. But Jess hasn't forgotten the terrific smashing of last July as yet.

Judging by what Willard displayed at Toledo against Dempsey, Jess wouldn't have much chance with Fulton's wonderful wagon-tongue left hand and his knockout right.

Easy Money for Dempsey.

Fulton is exploiting the theory that as champions European title holders are exalted cheeses. Fulton thinks Beckett, the Briton, will not stand more than a round or two in front of Dempsey. He also thinks Georges Carpentier, the French title holder, will outpoint Beckett in their coming 20 round fight, Dec. 4. Beckett is a man over 30 years of age who is little more than a novice, although rugged and a powerful hitter. Carpentier still is clever, Frederico thinks.

All of which should make Dempsey nervous. If Carpentier is to be his foe in that $175,000 title contest, the American will have about as much trouble eliminating the Gallic boxer as a starving man might have in devouring a stack of buckwheats.

Carpentier was beaten by Frank Klaus and by that down-and-out middleweight, Billy Papke. That was when Carpentier was in his prime. What will happen now that five or six years have elapsed, with Carpentier the victim of a nervous breakdown during the war, doesn't require much conjecture.

LAYTON, ALLEN, MATURO AND GREENLEAF WIN IN POCKET CUE TOURNEY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Charles Seeback, Hartford, Conn., vs. Jerome Keough, Rochester, N. Y., and Morris D. Fink, Philadelphia, vs. Edward I. Ralph, Hightstown, N. J., were the pairings for today's matches in the National American Pocket Billiard championship tournament.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Another exceedingly violent decline in exchange on London, a presidential message to Congress which was conservative in tone, the postponement of the railway question and the treaty for special messages—these were the incidents of the day with a bearing on finance. The stock market moved favorably, though the changes were not important and the direction of the movement occasionally altered. The day's market was not active.

"The money market held generally around 6 per cent. United States War Bonds recovered slightly. The Federal Reserve Banks' monthly bulletin, issued yesterday evening, explains the recent decline in those securities as largely due to sales 'for the purpose of providing additional margins on declining stocks thinly held.' The Secretary of the Treasury stated officially that no less than $1,043,000,000 of the outstanding Liberty Bonds have been bought and retired by the Treasury in the past 18 months. At the end of August, it will be recalled, the Treasury reported $717,537,300 bought back to that date, which means that $325,500,000 have been purchased in the subsequent three months.

"The statement of our October foreign trade by destination and origin, given out by the Government today, was studied for its relation to the movement of each and every trade in England. The excess of our October exports over imports was $14,-700,000 smaller than in 1918. But for the 10 months ending in October, our 'export excess' in traffic with that country had increased $68,000,000 over the same 10 months of 1918 and $1,-411,000,000 over 1913.

"The showing of exports and imports with other nations throws no great light on the cause for October's $130,000,000 increase in exports over last year—an increase occurring when the steel strike was in progress and when agricultural exports in the month had increased only $6,700,000.

"From a closing rate yesterday of $3.99¼ to the pound, sterling exchange broke violently again today to $3.94½. With the par of exchange $4.86⅝, this represents a depreciation of 18⅞ per cent—very much the greatest which has ever occurred in a century past.

"Although sterling went to a full 10 per cent discount in certain neutral markets during the Napoleonic wars, there are times in which one has to ransack the chapters of long-past history in order to find fair analogies.

"Exchange on Paris went to a new level of depreciation—today, for the first time, 10 francs could be had on the exchange market for a dollar, which is normally not more than 5¼ francs.

"Undoubtedly, in connection with the break in sterling, our rate of exchange on Sweden fell to the lowest rate of the period. Today's quotation of 22.05 cents per Swedish crown marked 17⅝ per cent depreciation from the par of 26⅞ cents. But when sterling is only 1 or 2 per cent below parity at Stockholm, bankers will buy it in New York to sell in the Swedish market, and must pay for the purchase by selling exchange on Sweden."

HOGS—A supply of approximately 25,000 hogs proved too much for the market today, which broke sharply. Early values were 35@50c off, with selling slow and prospects of further losses on the close. Top was $14.40, bulk of the early sales ranging from $14@14.30. Pig market steady where strictly choice offerings were involved, but 25@50c lower on light and inferior grades. Packers 15@25c lower, choice rough sows selling around $12.75 for the most part. The market closed with a stronger tone.

STRONG MARKET FOR CORN ON MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE

A severe cold wave over the crop belt, small primary receipts and prospects of an early ratification of the peace treaty, gave corn futures a strong tone in the early market here today, despite easier hog prices in Chicago and reports of industries closing, owing to the coal strike. Continued agitation for higher wages operates against lower commodity prices and living costs, and has a decided tendency to make farmers hold their corn whenever the price declines sharply.

Corn was strong in the late market and prices were 2c to 2½c higher. Oats were over 1c higher.

Reports on export oats sales reached a total of 1,000,000 bu.

COTTON SHOWS RENEWED FIRMNESS ON GOOD DEMAND

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The cotton market showed renewed firmness, opening 10 to 55 points higher on buying promoted by the settlement of the New England strike, relatively firm cables and reports of spot demand. The Value of a Coal Mine

Coal mining is a business unto itself—it involves more than the usual risks and problems of manufacturing.

Therefore ordinary appraisals by engineers alone—or by auditors alone—cannot give full report of values or possibilities.

The Peabody Coal Company knows coal and coal mining both from the marketing as well as the operating end.

We are one of the largest producers of bituminous coal in the country—operating 28 mines, with thirteen million tons capacity.

With our organization and 36 years' experience we furnish banks, bond houses, trustees or others with practical appraisals and reports on coal properties that are more than mere theory and figures.

We also undertake the management of property where desired.

Facts About Oil
Consumption Increases Faster Than Production

Crude oil production has increased substantially, but consumption has increased even faster. During the first eight months of 1919, 244,127,000 barrels were produced, an increase of 11,-000,000 barrels over the same period last year.

In August, domestic and foreign demands consumed 4,000,000 barrels more than was produced in the United States.

The U. S. Geological Survey's recent estimate of oil in the ground stated that Mexican oil fields would not continue producing oil for many years to come. Consequently we cannot rely on Mexico to make up the deficiency.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

CHEER UP.

"Reds are thick and getting thicker! Stocks are falling—watch the ticker; you can't buy a drop of liquor," wails your pessimistic friend. "Angry strikers fight and riot; every business is unquiet; we shall all be ruined by it, if this chaos doesn't end!

"Prices every day are rising at a rate that's paralyzing; there is really no disguising that we're due to have a crash. Any one can see the nation in this dreadful situation will be forced by wild inflation to a swift and awful crash!

"You can hear the earthquake rumble! Industry is going to tumble, the republic sure will crumble and leave honest people flat. Bolsheviks with evil cravings will go southward with our savings, with demoniacal ravings and rough gestures of eclat."

Though I would not try to smother the repining of this brother, I believe some how or other that he's just a trifle wrong. For we're told by sundry sages that the history of the ages has contained its gloomy pages, yet the world has jogged along.

Things may look a bit depressing. Times may seem somewhat distressing; future prospects keep us guessing; skies may look extremely black; but despite our troubled glances at rude strikes and mixed finances, we are banking on the chances that the country's coming back.

IT WILL BE A HARD WINTER, TOO.

Hot words around the arbitration council won't warm the country half as well as the coal would.

IF THEY HURRIED.

By a second court ruling Rhode Island has gone dry once more. The boys in the court room just about had time to rush down to the corner and get a drink.

NO GOOD.

You can still export whisky without getting arrested, but who wants to export whisky nowadays?

No Chance.

"We'd better not stay here. Let's go to some other cafe."

"What's the matter?"

"I don't think we'll ever get our dinner. I've just discovered that our waiter is the one that I forgot to tip the last time I was in here."—Detroit Free Press.
